Sherman College Lyceum approaching

The continuing education department at Sherman College of Chiropractic is "Charting the Course" for the future and will be hosting its annual continuing education and homecoming event, Lyceum, May 4th - 6th in Spartanburg. Up to 22 hours of CE have been applied for.

Hundreds of chiropractors and prospective students from around the world travel to the beautiful Upstate region of South Carolina each year for Lyceum, the college's annual homecoming and continuing education event. The event is held on the college's campus in Spartanburg and involves three days of seminars, reunions, alumni events and more.

For additional information about this year's Lyceum program and to register, go to www.sherman.edu/lyceum

Lofts by the Lake at Apache Mill construction underway

Greer - Dale & Jacalyn Goodrich of Upstate Developers, LLC will be joined by local government officials, supporters and investors for the groundbreaking ceremony for Lofts by the Lake at the Historic Apache Mill.

Lofts by the Lake industrial renovation of the 129-year-old Apache Mill into 97 upscale residential apartments.

Created from the former Apache Mill, the lofts will feature 11-foot windows overlooking Lake Apalache, exposed heart-pine beams and columns, and 18-foot walls of the mill's original red brick. With a history dating to 1837, the development combines rustic appeal with modern conveniences and luxury finishes.

Lofts will range from 700-1,800 square foot flats one, two, or three-bedroom. Some unit will be lofted. Most units have 11-foot windows. Limited number of patio units will be available.

Construction began in March, and will take about 14 months to complete.

Located 1 1/2 miles north of beautiful downtown Greer. Lofts by the Lake is only 15 minutes west to Greenville and east to Spartanburg, and is convenient to the airport and the Greenville Hospital System's Greer campus. Short walk Crestview Elementary school. Close to shopping. It's a quaint old mill village. Some of the original residents still live there.

Cherokee County man sentenced to 151 months on methamphetamine charges

Anderson - United States Attorney Beth Drake stated March 24th that Bruce Clark Gillespie, age 47, of Iva, was sentenced in federal court in Anderson, for Possession With Intent to Distribute Methamphetamine. United States District Judge Timothy M. Cain of Anderson sentenced Gillespie to 151 months imprisonment, followed by 3 years of supervised release. Gillespie also surrendered $119,612.00 in forfeiture and turned over 39 firearms, 2 Chevrolet Silverados, 2 ATVs, a Harley Davidson motorcycle, 2 Sea-Doos, and other property related to the drug offense.

Evidence presented at the change of plea and sentencing hearing established that from at least 2015 through 2016, Gillespie distributed large quantities of methamphetamine from his residence in Iva. Gillespie kept 39 guns, including a Street Sweeper and an AK-47, at his property, many of which were located in close proximity to the drugs and drug money. Gillespie was held responsible for possessing up to 1.5 kilograms of actual methamphetamine.

The case was investigated by agents of ICE-Homeland Security Investigations, Cherokee County Sheriff's Office, Anderson County Sheriff's Office, and ATF. Assistant United States Attorney Jamie Lea Schoen of the Greenville office prosecuted the case.

S.C. Department of Commerce unveils new website

Columbia - The S.C. Department of Commerce on March 28th announced the launch of its brand new website, which offers companies of all sizes a new view of the resources available to them.

For the first time in nearly seven years, the website for the state's economic development agency has received a major overhaul, featuring a responsive redesigned user interface. Developed with S.C. Commerce's various clients and partners in mind, the new website allows businesses looking to expand or locate in South Carolina the opportunity to access a variety of resources and information sortable by industry type, company size, geographic location and more.

To view S.C. Commerce's new website, visit www.sccommerce.com.

Rainbow Lake Middle School raises thousands to fight leukemia & lymphoma

Rainbow Lake Middle School recently mailed a check for $3,356.45 to the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society.

The effort was led by the Junior Beta Club, which spearheaded the school's participation in the Pennies for Patients campaign through the month of March.

The school's 187 Beta Club students put posters around the school to raise awareness. Students and staff then collected donations for the cancer society by competing against other homerooms to see which could raise the most money. Seventh grade science teacher Traci Thompson's homeroom room won a lunch sponsored by Olive Garden by raising nearly $758.

Beta Club sponsor Lora Hammett said this is the 2nd year students at RLM have raised money for the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society.

"It was exciting to see our kids come together to support this cause," Hammett said.

Spartanburg Community College names four Upstate companies "Economic Visionaries"

On Thursday, March 30, Spartanburg Community College recognized four outstanding companies who have made significant contributions in transforming the Upstate business community. Economic Visionary awards were presented to Atchinson Transportation Services, Broad River Electric Cooperative, Inc., The Timken Company - Tyger River Plant and BMW Manufacturing Company from Spartanburg and Cherokee counties at the College's first annual Economic Visionary event. Held at the Spartanburg Marriott. Mr. James I. Newsome, III, president/CEO of the South Carolina Ports Authority, was the event guest speaker.

"The Upstate is the engine driving South Carolina's new economy. During the past seven years, companies have invested more than $9 billion in capital in the Upstate, creating nearly 35,000 jobs. And more than 375 companies, representing 32 countries, call this area home, fueling South Carolina's reputation as a global economic leader," explains Henry C. Giles, Jr., SCC president. "SCC's inaugural Economic Visionaries is a wonderful opportunity for College to recognize and thank innovative companies for the work they do, their partnership with SCC, and their investment in our Upstate economy."

Four companies were named SCC 2017 Economic Visionaries based on the number of employees at each organization. "The competition was very keen, and all nominees were excellent," said Giles. "Each business's vision for their organization, their support of education, the environment and the community is impressive, and I am proud of each one of them."

Giles presented the following awards with assistance from SCC's new Executive Director of the College's Foundation, Bea Walters Smith. SCC's 2017 Economic Visionaries include the following:

* Category 1: 1-50 Employees ~ Broad River Electric Cooperative, Inc., Gaffney; accepting the award was Mr. Terry Mallard, president and CEO of the organization

* Category 2: 51-100 Employees ~ Atchinson Transportation Services, Spartanburg; accepting the award was Mr. Charles Atchinson, president of the organization.

* Category 3: 101-299 Employees ~ The Timken Company, Tyger River Plant, Duncan; accepting the award was Mr. Bob Hart, plant manager at the Tyger River Plant.

* Category 4: 300 or More Employees ~ BMW Manufacturing, Inc., Greer; accepting the award was Mr. Max Metcalf, manager of government and community relations for the organization.

Giles went on to explain that the College began planning for this event over a year ago in an effort to recognize business and industry that have created opportunities and have made a difference in our communities. "You cannot have a great community if there is not a vision and strong leadership and Spartanburg, Cherokee and Union Counties have both," he added. "Our communities are blessed to have visionaries that display strong leadership. This is especially true for our business and industries - they are the heart of our community: They add wealth to goods and services; they provide jobs for our citizens; they support and encourage good government and quality education; and they are supportive of a healthy/clean environment. In summary, they enable us to live and work in a healthy prosperous community. We are delighted to celebrate the great business and industry we have, both big and small."

President Giles adds, "From the automotive industry to carbon fiber, heavy machinery to distribution, the Upstate manufactures, ships and innovates - and, in the process, changes the world. That level of investment and economic success, however, would not be possible without partnerships - people pulling in the same direction to achieve common goals."

"We are grateful to the organizations that partnered with us as event sponsors. Tonight would not have been possible without their support. Thank you to the following ...," said Giles.

Making your point without arguing

From the American Counseling Association

We all face problems that crop up again and again. Most of us have probably yelled, "How many times have I told you?" and yet the behavior that drives us crazy continues to occur.

The reason for our frustration may be that we talk when we really ought to be acting. You've heard the expression, "Actions speak louder than words," and in our personal relationships that often can be true.

For example, perhaps there's a toddler in your house who thinks dinner time is a perfect time to play with his food rather than eat it, no matter how many times you reprimand him. Instead of constantly repeating that command to eat, try smiling at him, removing his plate, and saying calmly, "I see you're done with your dinner."

Will he protest? Most likely, and probably loudly. But the act of having his dinner disappear, along with your explanation of why, is likely to be more effective than simply ordering him to eat.

A similar situation might be if you have a spouse who tends to drink too much at social events. You find it embarrassing and have expressed your displeasure numerous times, all to no avail. Next time, instead of more complaining, simply take action by picking up the car keys, handing him or her ten dollars for that cab ride home, and walking out to your car and driving home.

There are numerous situations, from dealing with a parent who calls daily in order to criticize you, to a teen who refuses to heed family curfew hours, when arguing with the person doesn't result in a change in behavior but probably does give you a headache.

Instead of more arguing, take action. Inform your mother that if she criticizes you again you're going to hang up. Then follow through and do it if she can't stop herself.

See how your teen reacts if instead of arguing with him or her another time, you simply inform them of your planned action (such as withholding an allowance, or cutting off their cell phone), carry it out, then make it clear they brought the action on themselves.

It's important to take action with a positive, calm attitude. Yes, there will be protests, and yes, you will want to explain calmly what is happening and why, but the bottom line is that actions are much harder to ignore than simple words.

Turn up the volume: Spartanburg Music Trail Walking Tour Map & Guide updated; website mobile-friendly

From Pink Anderson and the Marshall Tucker Band, to Marshall Chapman and the Sparkletones, music has been part of the cultural fabric of Spartanburg County. Now visitors can listen to and learn more about some of the area's most famous native sons and daughters on the Spartanburg Music Trail.

The Spartanburg Convention & Visitors Bureau (SCVB) has partnered with the Hub City Writers Project, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Philharmonic Orchestra to produce a new version of the popular walking tour map, and make the Spartanburg Music Trail website mobile friendly.

"The tour will take you about 30 minutes," says Joe Mullinax, principal of MoreView Media, the firm that produced the print and web pieces. "With your smartphone, you'll be guided along from stop-to-stop and have narration by Spartanburg's own Peter Cooper, author of Hub City Music Makers: One Southern Town's Popular Music History (Hub City Press, 1996). He is a former reporter for the Spartanburg Herald-Journal newspaper, a former editor of Creative Loafing in the Upstate, and a Grammy nominated artist. You'll discover interesting facts about each artist, learn where Elvis played in town and where to see today's performers." "These tweaks to an already great downtown Spartanburg walking tour allow visitors to get up close and personal with the people and places that make Spartanburg such an amazing music destination," said Chris Jennings, Executive Vice President of the SCVB. Currently there are 18 musicians highlighted at nine stops, and Jennings noted that the walking tour is designed with both history and hospitality in mind. The printed map and guide provides more information on each musician, highlights local music venues and points of interest that tie into our musical heritage. The website is now GPS enabled, allowing users to take the tour on their smartphone. They can hear song samples, listen to narration and discover more side trips. "We want travelers to learn how Spartanburg impacted the music of our country, take some pictures and engage on social media," he said. "Then they can grab a bite to eat and hear live music almost every night in our rapidly-growing Downtown Cultural District." The Spartanburg Music Trail was produced by local media firm MoreViewMedia.com. Map and guides will be available at the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce Visitors Center at 105 N. Pine Street, as well as the Hub City Book Shop, Spartanburg Regional History Museum in the Chapman Cultural Center, local hotels and attractions, and Official South Carolina Welcome Centers. About the Spartanburg Music Trail: The Spartanburg Music Trail opened in 2011 when signage honoring 12 musicians and bands was added along Main Street and Liberty streets. Since that time six others have been added in the area near the Chapman Cultural Center and USC Upstate's George Dean Johnson School of Business on East St. John Street.

Spartanburg Regional Hospice to deliver Easter meals to families

Holidays are a time for families to come together and create lasting memories — and Easter is no exception. When a loved one is receiving hospice care, planning a family gathering might slip your mind. But the Spartanburg Regional Hospice and Spartanburg Regional Foundation are there to take the reins.

For more than 20 years, the two have partnered to provide comfort and support to families during the Easter holiday. "The last months and weeks of an illness can be so challenging and stressful for our patients and families, and if we can make their lives a little easier, we want to do it," said Kim Ross, director of Regional Hospice and Palliative Care. "For many of our way they will experience a special family meal this Easter."

Spartanburg Regional Foundation supports the cost of Easter meals prepared by Wade's Restaurant for families receiving care from Spartanburg Regional Hospice. The program is one of many ways Spartanburg Regional Foundation and Spartanburg Regional Hospice — both part of Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System — collaborate to support patients and families.

Early on Saturday, April 15, volunteers will load up their vehicles with meals from Wade's Restaurant. One-by-one, volunteers will hand deliver the meals to families who have a loved one receiving care from Spartanburg Regional Hospice.

"When a loved one is receiving hospice care, financial issues and the emotional strain brought on by an illness make it complicated to get family together," said Kristy Caradori, executive director of the Spartanburg Regional Foundation. "Yet it's important to create those family memories, and we want to help families during these times."

A $55 donation to Spartanburg Regional Foundation enables Wade's to prepare a special holiday meal for these families with service for 12. Spartanburg Regional Hospice currently cares for nearly 130 patients in their homes. This year the Easter Meal program expects to provide for more than 1,500 people.

"When dealing with a loved one in Hospice, you may not want to prepare a fancy meal," said Shelly Sinclair, Spartanburg Regional Foundation director of philanthropy. "We want them to enjoy the holiday with their loved ones. The Easter Meals allow the patients and their family to enjoy a nice meal that they do not have to stress about so they can really focus on spending quality time with their family."

Families who lost a loved one in Spartanburg Regional Hospice care within the two weeks leading up to Easter will also receive a meal, helping them to experience a time of healing and togetherness.

For more information on Easter Meals or to make a donation today, please visit RegionalFoundation.com.

A good map is hard to find: Wofford students update rare map of the world

By Sarah Madden,
Wofford Class of 2017

Wofford College junior Jake Brice, an international affairs and economics double major from Greenville, is taking a class this semester on "Russia and its neighbors." The large world map on the wall of his classroom was printed in 1989 at a time before the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics split into "Russia and its neighbors." Brice decided to find a replacement, but discovered that a good map can be hard to find.

"The map is the largest single piece world map every produced, and only 50 of them were made," says Brice.

After calling the maker of the original map in Germany, Brice discovered that the company closed the large map division in 2014 because of decreased demand. The company, however, still had two maps printed in 2014 available. Brice convinced the company to ship the map from Germany to Virginia and drafted a proposal to

Thanks to the efforts of Jake Brice and Wofford student government funding, a new map hangs in Daniel Building 203.

Campus Union to fund the $800 expense.

Now, thanks to Brice's initiative and Wofford student government funding, a new map hangs in Daniel Building 203.

"The old map was historically accurate but contemporarily inaccurate," says

Dr. Rachel Vanderhill, assistant professor of government and international affairs who teaches the class. "The map was relevant for the first few weeks of the class when we study the Soviet Union, but when we move on to study the current era and look at Kazakhstan, Ukraine or Belarus, none of these countries were on the old map because they were formerly in the Soviet Union. So it was problematic because the map was not representative of the world today."

Dr. William DeMars,

professor and chair of government and international affairs, arrived at Wofford to teach international affairs in 2001. He found the map valuable but outdated and tried, with the help of students, to find a comparable replacement.

"In 1991 there had been so much change – Germany had reunified, Czechoslovakia broke up, Yugoslavia broke up, Ethiopia and Eritrea – but I loved having the big world map on the wall when I was teaching," he says. "It makes a difference being able to see how close or how far away countries are from each other. For wars, border disputes, refugees, the movement of disease, trade and communication – all these things are affected by geography."

DeMars says he is encouraged by what this initiative says about his students.

"The encouraging surprise is that students today – in an age of instantaneous information and images – recognize the value of learning world politics in a small classroom with 20 students, one professor and a large physical world map," he says. "I am glad that I left the map up all these years so that a generation of students could learn from it, and so Jake and his friends could come along in 2017 and find an updated version."

Higher gas prices have Americans considering traveling closer to home this summer

Charlotte, N.C. – More than 60 percent of Americans say they will consider traveling closer to home this summer if gas prices increase above current levels, according to a new AAA survey. AAA projects the national average for a gallon of gasoline will peak near $2.70 this summer – a 40 cent increase from current levels and a 75 cent increase from last year.

"With gas prices steadily increasing, we will see more people traveling close to home this summer," said AAA Carolinas President and CEO Dave Parsons. "With families traveling close to home, domestic national parks and theme parks are the most desired travel destinations this year."

The Carolinas are already seeing higher gas prices than this time last year. Currently, South Carolina's average price of gas is sitting at $2.02, which is $0.16 more than last year. North Carolina's state wide average is $2.18, an increase of $0.21 from last year.

The price at the pump will also impact day-to-day choices for Americans. More than 70 percent say they would make everyday lifestyle or driving habit changes to offset an increase in gas prices. The survey found the top five changes drivers would make include combining errands or trips, driving less, reducing shopping or dining out, delaying major purchases, and carpooling.

However, not everyone will jump to make a change. The survey found, younger Americans (18-34) are more tolerant of higher prices and less likely to change habits compared to older consumers (35 and older).

During April, Americans across the country will start to see gas prices begin to climb as the industry makes the switchover to summer-blend gasoline. Over the years, public opinion for whether a gallon of gasoline is too high or too low has fluctuated as much as the price itself.

When gas prices are above the $3.00 benchmark (as they were in 2013 and 2014), Americans believe prices should be six percent lower.

When gas prices are below the $3.00 benchmark (as they were in 2015 and 2016), Americans believe a 25 percent increase is too high.

Natural tips to beat seasonal respiratory health challenges

(StatePoint) Spring and summer can be particularly difficult times of year for those with respiratory health challenges, when simple activities like gardening, walking the dog and reading a book on the patio can cause itching, wheezing, sneezing and trouble breathing.

"It is all about improving one's immune function in response to environmental factors, which can mean the difference between perpetual discomfort and a happy, vital spring and summer," says Kelly Heim, PhD, senior director of Scientific Affairs at Pure Encapsulations, a leading manufacturer of dietary supplements.

Whether you are looking to make your garden the envy of the neighborhood, or you simply want to stay active and comfortable while enjoying the outdoors, consider the following treatments and tips.

Something Sweet

Honey isn't just delicious; it can be therapeutic, potentially helping you to alleviate seasonal symptoms. However, it is important you select honey produced in your local area for this strategy to work. You should also know that this immunotherapeutic approach won't protect against all the causes of respiratory health challenges.

Dietary Supplements

Your nutritional intake can have a large impact on the way you feel in spring. Consider a dietary supplement designed to support both innate and adaptive immune response. For example, Pure Encapsulations Aller-Essentials with EpiCor contains a blend of nutrients and herbal extracts designed to promote healthy immune function in response to environmental factors.

Research suggests that it outdoors, for example, don't toss the same jeans and clothing that have been on a picnic blanket on your bedspread. Wash your hair in the evening before going to sleep, particularly after a day in the garden, and remember to change and launder your pillows and linens regularly.

Ask a Doctor

When it comes to health, there is no one-size-fits all solution. Talk with your health care provider, who can help you pinpoint the exact source of your suffering, in order to determine the best treatment options for you.

With a few lifestyle changes, you can look forward to a season of breathing easy.

enhances natural killer cell activation, B cell and T cell function, and salivary IgA levels; and that the quercetin, hesperidin and vitamin C in the supplement provide additional support for stabilizing mast cells which can release histamines and exacerbate respiratory issues. More information can be found at PureEncapsulations.com/alleressentials.

Practical Considerations

While building up your immune response is crucial in the battle against respiratory problems, you can make your home a healthy oasis from with a few practical considerations. Create a makeshift mudroom or landing zone in your foyer. Remove shoes and outer layers when you get home, and ask your guests to do the same upon arrival.

Keep your bedroom particularly protected from the

Creative gardening tips for the spring season

(StatePoint) Gardeners often focus on the science of their hobby: how much water and sunlight their plants need and how to improve soil quality and keep pests at bay. But there can be a lot of artistry behind the craft as well -- from how you harvest and enjoy flowers to how you convert unused spaces of your home into a viable indoor edible garden.

Put your creativity to good use this spring season by gardening with style.

Indoor Gardening

For those who don't have an outdoor garden or yard, the dream of enjoying your own freshly picked fruits and vegetables may seem out of reach. However, the nooks and crannies of your home can be creatively rendered into productive growing zones. And experts say that nearly all homes can support indoor gardening.

"Whatever the size of your home, there will be a selection of edible plants you can grow indoors, as long as you have some natural daylight filtering in," says Zia Allaway, author of

"Indoor Edible Garden: Creative Ways to Grow Herbs, Fruit and Vegetables in Your Home." "The areas where plants will grow can be windowsills, beneath a skylight or even in a dark, unlit area if you install grow lights."

In "Indoor Edible Garden," a highly visual guide full of practical tips and stylish ideas, Allaway offers step-by-step directions for everything from creating suspended shelves and hanging jars for growing herbs to mounting edible orchids onto bark and displaying them on walls. She points out that those embarking on indoor gardening should first evaluate the level of time they can commit.

"Just remember that unlike other projects in the home, such as decorating and cooking, all gardening projects require some aftercare. So, if you have a busy schedule, choose crops that will tolerate less watering and feeding."

Flower Arranging

While your flower garden is likely a beautiful work of art in and of itself, you can spread the joy by harvesting your flora and bringing the beauty indoors. Floral arrangements add vitality to any interior space.

"For me, every arrangement starts with the container. Think about what mood or style you want to evoke, and remember, anything can be a container as long as it can be made watertight," says Rachel Siegfried, author of "The Flower Book: Natural Flower Arrangements for Your Home," which explores 60 flowers, bloom-by-bloom in portraiture, including quick-reference profiles and tips.

Siegfried recommends that, when selecting flowers for your arrangement, pay attention to shapes, textures and colors to achieve good balance. Start with a primary focal flower and build out with a couple of secondary focals, a final flourish, and foliage.

For her part, she relies on instinct. "I get a 'buzz' when I find a good combination," she says.

From flowering bouquets to spicy pepper plants, apply creativity to your gardening this spring.
