Spartanburg named one of the best places to visit with your dog

Fort Mill - Reviews.com, a leading consumer advocacy organization, recently announced the results of a new report detailing the top cities that are home to the most dog-friendly destinations. Researchers from Reviews.com assessed data provided by TripAdvisor and Touropia to create its list of the best cities to visit with your dog.

Spartanburg was ranked #50 in the U.S. It was featured within the top 10% for its combined ranking on the best amenities and outdoor activities for traveling with your dog.

Cities were analyzed on a strict criterion that includes: number of dog parks; availability of dog trails; amount of dog-friendly restaurants; options for dog-friendly lodging; nearby dog-friendly beaches; availability of dog day-care; and nearby veterinarians or emergency clinics.

The full report and methodology can be found at <https://www.reviews.com/best-dog-travel/>

Spartanburg Artist's landscape exhibit depict Georgia and the Carolinas

City Council approves purchase of facility at 450 Wofford Street for new fire station

Spartanburg City Council voted 6-1 to approve a $4.3 million purchase of the former Integral Solutions property at 450 Wofford Street with an eye towards converting the structure into a new central fire station. Council member Sterling Anderson voted against the purchase.

Initially included as part of the proposed fiscal year 2019-2020 city budget, Council voted to remove the fire station proposal along with a millage increase meant to partially fund the facility. Council member Sterling Anderson put forth the amendment removing the fire station plan from the budget, citing concerns over the three mills property tax increase (amounting to $12 on a home valued at $100,000) as well as the planned renovation of the former Integral Solutions building. Anderson has stated throughout the process that he favors constructing a new fire station instead of renovating the facility. As part of negotiations with the property owner, the City was able to negotiate the purchase price down from its initial $4.5 million to the approved $4.3 million.

City Manager Chris Story has previously said that either a millage increase or a reduction in city services would be needed in order to fund either the renovation or new construction for a fire station. Council members Sterling Anderson and Jamie Fulmer have both stated their opposition to any millage increase to fund the station, and Story said at Monday's meeting that several options for funding the new fire station will be presented to Council in the coming weeks.

A new option for the Fire Department will be needed soon, as both the City Police Department and City administrative staff will be vacating the current City Hall within the next few years as part of a joint facilities agreement with Spartanburg County. In 2017, Spartanburg County voters passed a 1 percent sales tax increase to fund a new County Courthouse and new facilities for Spartanburg County Administration, City Hall, and the respective police agencies for both County and City. However, fire department facilities were not included in the referendum, leaving the City to fund a new fire department facility on its own.

Spartanburg Chamber of Commerce begins facility renovation

The Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce will undergo a facility renovation to better serve the needs of its affiliated organizations and community.

The Spartanburg Chamber building, at 105 N. Pine St., will be renovated over the coming months. During construction, the Spartanburg Chamber, Spartanburg Convention & Visitors Bureau and Spartanburg Economic Futures Group will operate from the former Brown and Brown Insurance offices, directly next door at 103 N. Pine St. A.

"We host all kinds of people at our facility - local partners, visitors and economic development prospects from all over the world," said Spartanburg Chamber President and CEO Allen Smith. "Additionally, 40,000 vehicles pass our building every day. The time has come to invest in a facility that represents the growth and momentum of our community. The Executive Board and staff are incredibly excited about being a part of another key gateway improvement and the opportunity to better showcase Spartanburg to a growing audience."

Renovating the Chamber-owned building at 105 N. Pine St. was determined to be the most cost-effective option. McMillan Pazdan Smith architects have worked with the executive board and staff to determine a modern design that encourages collaboration and provides visitors a warm impression of the community.

"The updated facilities will be more welcoming, accessible and comfortable for all parties," said Chris Jennings, executive vice president of the Spartanburg Convention & Visitors Bureau. "Both Spartanburg and our organization are overdue for a facility that provides a real southern welcome to the community."

The Spartanburg Chamber offices were closed Thursday Aug. 1, and Friday Aug. 2 in preparation for the move to the Brown and Brown building. Operations at 103 N. Pine St. A will begin on Monday, August 12.

Chesnee High School graduate's photo to be featured in Times Square

Chesnee High School's Connor Bloomfield will be featured on the big screen in the heart of New York City as a part of the National Down Syndrome Society's (NDSS) annual Times Square Video presentation on September 14th. The video helps kick off Down Syndrome Awareness Month on the morning of the NDSS Buddy Walk® in New York City.

"We were ecstatic," said Michelle Bloomfield about her son's picture being selected for the display. Bloomfield said she is excited about going to New York City to represent Connor.

The photo that was chosen was of Connor graduating from Chesnee High School this past May. The photo was posted on our D2 Facebook page.

"We were so proud of him. His whole family was there," Bloomfield said. "Everyone wanted to share in his celebration. He was so proud of himself and that made us even more proud of him."

Bloomfield said the picture of Connor captures the joy he has felt while being a student in D2. From Hendrix Elementary to Boiling Springs Elementary to Rainbow Lake Middle and finally to Chesnee High School, Bloomfield says her son has felt loved and valued. "All the way from preschool to today, he has had some wonderful teachers. They have really helped him reach beyond what we thought he could," Bloomfield said. "We were concerned when he was younger. But once he was expected to do more, he took that as a challenge, and he has grown by leaps and bounds."

Connor will return to D2 this fall and continue to receive services to prepare him to transition to the workforce. Bloomfield said she's excited that he will continue to be surrounded by the Difference Makers that have given him so much independence.

"They have believed Connor could achieve and they helped him do it. They have been his biggest cheerleaders."

"Every year, NDSS reminds the world in a big way about the gifts that people with Down Syndrome bring to their communities through a special video presentation on a jumbo screen in the heart of Times Square. The featured photographs highlight children, teens and adults with Down syndrome working, playing and learning alongside friends and family. These collective images promote acceptance and inclusion, which is the foundation of NDSS and the National Buddy Walk® Program. The video presentation is a reminder of the contributions, accomplishments and value of people with Down Syndrome."-NDSS

Do you really listen to what others have to say?

From the American Counseling Association

Most of us like to hear ourselves talk. We enjoy sharing information about ourselves, our jobs, and our recent activities. And there's nothing wrong with that, unless we spend so much time talking that we forget to actually listen to what others are sharing.

Being a good listener is an essential skill in maintaining strong personal relationships, whether with relatives or with our friends. Yet, too often we tend to believe that solid relationships just seem to happen. Having good friends takes some work and effort on our part, and a major element in building those relationships is learning how to listen.

Most of us have probably had the experience of having a friend clearly demonstrate he or she really wasn't listening when we had shared something important with them. Their words or actions indicate that what we had to share simply wasn't heard or understood.

Sadly, many of us do the same thing without realizing that we've put listening to what a friend is communicating on automatic, mainly hearing the words but not registering the meaning. That can be a real problem when what is being shared is truly important to the person talking to you.

So how do you become a better listener? A good starting point is to pay attention to how others listen when you have something significant to share. Try to note what a good listener, someone you appreciate, says or does to indicate that they're paying attention to you and what you're saying.

Next, do the same type of observing with someone who doesn't really seem to hear you when you share something important. How do they show they're not really paying attention? Are they distracted? Evaluate if your own actions favor those of the good or poor listener.

If your listening needs improvement, it isn't difficult to become a good listener. Start by simply listening more than you speak when someone is communicating something important. Don't interrupt with your own stories and ideas, even if you think your experience is similar.

Instead, take time to seek clarification if things were said you didn't understand, and show you're paying attention by feeding back key parts of the conversation. At the end, try to summarize what was shared to demonstrate you heard and understood the key points.

Being a good listener is an important skill and an essential element in building and maintaining strong friendships.

Riley Fellows unveil new food truck for Greenville County students

A group of Riley Fellows from the Riley Institute at Furman University unveiled a new food truck for its first service of meals to Greenville County students on July 31, at Travelers Rest United Methodist Church.

The donation by the Riley Fellows gives Greenville County Schools its second food truck serving free, nutritionally balanced meals to children during the summer months.

"The generous gift of this incredible new food truck will allow us to continue to expand the reach of our Seamless Summer Feeding Program by adding mobile routes into the Berea and Travelers Rest communities," said Joe Urban, Director of Greenville County Schools Food and Nutrition Services.

"During the regular school year, the new food truck will service Berea and Travelers Rest schools with pop-up lunch events, nutrition education opportunities, fresh fruit and vegetables sampling and taste testing new menu items," he added.

The Riley Fellows known as the "Swamp Rabbit Express" donated a second food truck to Greenville County Schools as part of their service project with the Riley Institute's Diversity Leaders Initiative.

The Riley Fellows donating the truck call themselves "Swamp Rabbit Express," a nod to the truck's service area along the Swamp Rabbit Trail. They are graduates of the Riley Institute at Furman's Diversity Leaders Initiative (DLI). As part of the DLI program, participants work in small, cross-sector groups to respond to real issues and opportunities in their communities through service projects.

"Nearly half of Greenville County Schools' approximately 76,000 students rely on the Food and Nutrition Program, leaving a gap in the summer months. Many of these students come from historically distressed areas or backgrounds. We wanted to do something to close the gap," said Traci Hogan, Swamp Rabbit Express team member and GCS Assistant Superintendent for Special Education.

Through the USDA Seamless Summer Feeding Program, Greenville County Schools is able to provide breakfast and lunches free of charge to all children 18 years old and younger in qualifying locations. Greenville County Schools Seamless Summer program operates in over 50 schools and community center locations. A food truck delivers meals to children in communities that do not have transportation to access Seamless Summer locations.

"We know children in lower income homes are more at risk for obesity and related health conditions such as diabetes," said Don Gordon, executive director of the Riley Institute. "Increasing access to nutritious food and encouraging kids to be active are critical components for building healthier communities."

The Riley Fellows on the Swamp Rabbit Express team are:

- * Stacey Bechtold, Greenville County Parks, Recreation and Tourism
- * Marty Herndon, Snider Fleet Solutions
- * Traci Hogan, Greenville County Schools
- * Toni Land, Prisma Health-Upstate
- * Rimes McElveen, Mere Christianity Forum

Greenville Chamber hires three new team members

Greenville - The Greenville Chamber has hired three new team members who will work to advance the Chamber's mission of leading, convening and mobilizing the business community to drive regional economic growth.

Kevin Capell joins the team as the Vice President of Investor Development and Engagement. In this role, Kevin develops, leads and executes the Chamber Investors' growth and engagement strategy. He brings a wealth of both not-for-profit and private sector experience, having most recently worked at the Anderson Area Chamber of Commerce. Kevin has a Business Administration degree from Southern Wesleyan University.

Cheryl Garrison will serve as the Director of Talent and Workforce Solutions. Cheryl will develop and execute strategies to remove barriers to workforce participation, align resources, and attract and develop talent. Cheryl brings to this role extensive experience in education at both the higher education and K-12 level, working with business and industry in both roles. Cheryl earned her Master of Arts in Education/Health and Exercise Science from Furman University and her Doctorate in Education, Organizational Leadership from Northeastern University.

Marnie Schwartz-Hanley has been hired as an Engagement Manager, focusing on supporting and developing Chamber Investors. She will also relaunch the Ambassador program. Marnie brings a strong background in Chamber of Commerce administration. She earned her bachelor's degree in Human and Social Service Administration from Bellevue University.

"We are excited about the addition of these valuable individuals to our team as we continue to deliver transformative value and exceptional service," says Carlos Phillips, President and CEO of the Greenville Chamber.

More families have a plan to pay for college

(StatePoint) College may be getting more expensive, but new research suggests that more families are preparing to meet those costs one way or another.

Eighty percent of families say they are confident in how they paid for college last year, and nearly half have a plan to pay for all years of college, according to "How America Pays for College 2019," a recent study from Sallie Mae and Ipsos, an independent global market research company.

All this preparation could be attributed to the fact that the overwhelming majority of families recognize the value of higher education, with 90 percent of families agreeing college is an investment.

"The individual and socio-economic benefits of a college education are clear, so it's particularly gratifying to see that families continue to view college as a worthwhile investment," says Raymond J. Quinlan, chairman and CEO, Sallie Mae.

On average, families report spending $26,226 on college in academic year 2018-19, with a sizeable portion of costs -- 43 percent -- covered out-of-pocket through income and savings.

Scholarships, grants, and gifts -- used by 82 percent of families -- covered 33 percent of costs, and that "free money" can be especially important, both logistically and psychologically, opening doors to opportunities that would be otherwise unavailable and even making a difference in the way students view the college experience as a whole.

The study also found that while borrowing covered

24 percent of overall college costs, 57 percent of the families who borrowed to pay for college say they had always planned to do so as part of their paying-for-college strategy. What's more, many families are getting a head start on paying their loans back, with 41 percent making payments on student loans while the student is in school.

Families are being proactive in other ways, too. Seventy-seven percent of families completed the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) for the 2018-19 academic year. Completing the FAFSA is the first step in receiving a financial aid award letter from schools. Of those who filed for the 2019-20 academic year, 25 percent did so in October, the first month the application is available. On the other hand, the majority of families waited until January or later to file, potentially missing out on free money for college.

For the complete report and a related infographic, visit SallieMae.com/HowAmericaPays. For new tools and educational resources that promote college planning, visit salliemae.com/college-planning.

"While more families are planning for college costs, we'd like to see that number continue to grow because we know those with a plan are better prepared to meet the costs, and typically have a better understanding of the financial aid process," says Quinlan.

In-vehicle infotainment systems especially distracting to older drivers

Charlotte, N.C. - New in-vehicle infotainment technology has the potential to increase comfort and extend mobility for older drivers, but first it has to stop distracting them. On average, older drivers (ages 55-75) removed their eyes and attention from the road for more than eight seconds longer than younger drivers (ages 21-36) when performing simple tasks like programming navigation or tuning the radio using in-vehicle infotainment technology, according to new research from the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety. Taking your eyes off the road for just two seconds doubles a driver's risk of a crash.

"Voice-command functions found in new in-vehicle technology are intended to help drivers by keeping their eyes and attention on the road," said Tiffany Wright, President of AAA Carolinas Foundation for Traffic Safety. "Unfortunately, the complexity and poor design of some of these systems could cause more harm for older drivers, in particular, instead of helping them."

By 2030, more than one in five drivers on the road will be over the age of 65. With seniors becoming the fastest growing demographic in the U.S., finding ways to design technology to improve their comfort and safety is critical and may hold the key to enhancing the safe use of this technology for all drivers.

In North Carolina in 2018, there were 46,524 reported crashes involving a driver 65 and older resulting in 305 senior driver fatalities, according to the NCDOT.

The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety partnered with researchers from the University of Utah to test the visual and cognitive demand created by infotainment systems used by participants in two age groups (21-36 and 55-75). Researchers found that the technology created potentially unsafe distractions for all drivers, though this safety risk is more pronounced for older adults, who took longer (4.7-8.6 seconds) to complete tasks, experienced slower response times, and increased visual distractions.

The complex design of the technology created

	Audio Entertainment	Calling and Dialing	Text Messaging	Navigation Entry
Younger (21-36 yrs)	18.0 sec	17.7 sec	27.7 sec	31.4 sec
Older (55-75 yrs)	25.4 sec	22.4 sec	33.8 sec	40.0 sec increased visual and cognitive demand for older drivers. For example, some systems included multiple menus and cumbersome voice command functions that significantly reduced older drivers' ability to easily complete seemingly simple tasks.

Specific design changes to in-vehicle infotainment systems, like improving voice-command technology, simplifying software menus, removing complex center console controls, and positioning system controls to allow drivers to keep their eyes on the road, would better meet the needs of older adults and make the systems safer for all drivers.

Whether you purchase a new vehicle, or rent one while traveling, AAA recommends that all drivers, especially older drivers, keep the following tips in mind:

* Avoid interacting with in-vehicle infotainment technology while driving except for legitimate emergencies.

* Practice using the voice command and touch screen functions when not driving to build comfort in case emergency use is required.

* Avoid vehicles that require use of a center console controller when using the infotainment system. These kinds of systems are especially distracting, and potentially dangerous.
