Spartanburg County farmer named finalist in Farm Bureau Young Farmers and Ranchers Excellence Contest

Myrtle Beach – Case Chumley of Spartanburg County has been named one of four state finalists in the 2017 South Carolina Farm Bureau Young Farmers & Ranchers Excellence in Agriculture Contest during the organizations 73rd Annual Meeting held recently in Myrtle Beach. The contest winner will be announced in February at the 2017 SCFB Young Farmer & Rancher Conference in Charleston.

Chumley will be competing for the opportunity to win $500, a Polaris ATV, and an expense paid trip to the 2018 American Farm Bureau Annual Convention in Nashville, TN. The other finalists for the award are Nikki Seibert Kelley of Charleston County, Zachary Snipes of Charleston County and Dan Swenson of Newberry County.

The Excellence in Agriculture Award recognizes young farmers and ranchers who do not derive the majority of their income from an owned agricultural operation, but who actively contribute to agriculture and Farm Bureau. Award prizes are complements of Southern Farm Bureau Casualty Insurance Company, Southern Farm Bureau Life Insurance Company, South Carolina Farm Bureau Federation and Polaris.

City Fire Department earns exclusive top rating

The fire-protection services of the City of Spartanburg, as rated by an insurance industry advisory company, has improved to Class 1 from a Class 2, the city announced in December. The classification by Insurance Services Office, Inc. (ISO), known as the Public Protection Classification (PPC) program, assesses the fire-protection efforts in a particular community.

ISO collects information on municipal fire-protection efforts in communities throughout the United States. In each of those communities, ISO analyzes the relevant data using its Fire Suppression Rating Schedule (FSRS). The company then assigns a Public Protection Classification from 1 to 10. Class 1 generally represents superior property fire protection, and Class 10 indicates that the area's fire-suppression program doesn't meet ISO's minimum criteria.

The ISO 1 rating is validation of the superior services City residents receive. Only 204 of nearly 47,700 — 0.4 percent — fire protection service agencies in the nation have earned the ISO 1 rating.

The ISO derives ratings by considering the training, equipment, and response times of the fire department (50 percent of the score), the community's emergency communications system (10 percent), and the community's water supply (40 percent). The ISO 1 rating is a reflection not just of the City's Fire Department, but also Spartanburg County 911.

By classifying communities' ability to suppress fires, ISO helps the communities evaluate their public fire-protection services. The program provides an objective, countrywide standard that helps fire departments in planning and budgeting for facilities, equipment, and training. And by securing lower fire insurance premiums for communities with better public protection, the PPC program provides incentives and rewards for communities that choose to improve their firefighting services.

Spartanburg Little Theatre ignites the stage with Ring of Fire: The Music of Johnny Cash

From the iconic songbook of Johnny Cash comes Ring of Fire, a unique musical about love and faith, struggle and success, rowdiness and redemption, and home and family. Presented by the Spartanburg Little Theatre, Ring of Fire hits the stage at the Chapman Cultural Center with performances January 13, 14, 20, and 21 at 8 pm, and January 15, 21 and 23 at 3 pm.

Tickets for Ring of Fire: The Music of Johnny Cash can be purchased by calling the Chapman Cultural Center box office at (864) 542-2787 or by ordering online at www.chapmanculturalcenter.org. Tickets are $30 for adults, $27 for seniors and $20 for students.

Internships with the Johnson Collection help art history majors prepare for life after Wofford.

Building a portfolio of experience

By Omar K. Elmore, Wofford College Class of '19

Two Wofford College students are advancing their careers in the arts with help from the Johnson Collection (TJC) in downtown Spartanburg. Jordan Wiseman is a marketing intern. Reagan Petty is improving her curatorial skills.

At the beginning of each academic year, TJC offers top seniors at Wofford the opportunity to apply for a competitive, comprehensive internship experience. This year, however, the collection made an exception and offered two internships to members of the Wofford Class of 2017.

"My Wofford art history professor, Dr. Karen Goodchild, knows that I aspire to work in arts marketing, and she reached out to the Johnson Collection on my behalf," says Wiseman, an art history major from Parkersburg, W.Va. "Following a Skype interview during my spring semester in Rome, the Johnson Collection graciously offered to take me on as their first-ever public relations intern."

Wiseman particularly loved her work promoting events and increasing interest through social media, but she says she also has enjoyed discovering how to conduct market research, track analytics and write marketing copy. She plans to enter a master's program in arts administration or museum studies after she graduates in preparation to begin her career in either the marketing or development department of an art museum.

"Ultimately, I aspire to become the executive director of a renowned art museum," Wiseman says.

During her internship, Petty, an art history major from Franklin, Tenn., has researched art, written object labels and worked on the content and layout of exhibitions. Her internship allowed her the opportunity to help with the display of several shows, including Leo Twiggs' provocative and moving "Requiem for Mother Emanuel" exhibition.

"In the future, I would love to curate at a contemporary art museum," she says. "I am also interested in studying race and politics in contemporary American art, and would like to remain involved in academia to teach and continue researching these subjects."

The Art on Tap event held in November provided an ideal opportunity for Wiseman and Petty to show off their skills. In its fourth year, Art on Tap is a collaborative effort of TJC and RJ Rockers Brewing Co. celebrating Southern art and good beer. This year's theme was "Southern Roots: Selections of Self-Taught Art."

Wiseman's news release about the event said it was filled with "imaginative, bold and thought-provoking works that challenge the traditional ideas of artistic training and celebrate the varied backgrounds of the artists."

Petty co-curated the show along with TJC curator Dr. Erin Corrales-Diaz, a visiting professor at Wofford, another connection between the college and the collection and further evidence of the commitment to education and the arts shared by Susu and George Dean Johnson Jr.

"There is such an impressive holding of self-taught art in the Johnson Collection," Petty says. "It has been fascinating to immerse myself in the study of this exciting branch of Southern art."

After their experiences, both Wiseman and Petty feel prepared for careers in the field.

"It has been an exciting, challenging and rewarding experience, and I am fortunate to benefit from the Johnson Collection's deep commitment to education and internships," Wiseman says.

The Johnson Collection began in 2002 when George Dean Johnson Jr., Wofford Class of 1964, and his wife, Susu, began collecting paintings by Carolina artists. Today, the collection encompasses more than 1,000 objects with provenances that span the centuries and chronicle the cultural evolution of the American South.

Music Foundation to sponsor three concerts to benefit Hendersonville Community Theatre

The Music Foundation of Western North Carolina will present three free concerts this month to benefit the Hendersonville Community Theatre. The "2nd Annual Benefit Concert Series" will be Jan. 14 (classical piano solos), Jan. 15 (classical piano and clarinet), and Jan. 27 (classical/jazz). Each is free and will be held at the theater, 229 S. Washington Street in Hendersonville.

"This is second year the Foundation has sponsored a concert series to benefit the Theatre," Joann Freeburg, president and founder of the Foundation said. "As a nonprofit arts agency in this region, The Music Foundation of Western North Carolina is establishing itself as a leader in cultural affairs and what better way to contribute to our community than to help a fellow agency, such as the Hendersonville Community Theatre with its educational programming and capital improvements? These will be wonderful concerts, offering classical music with strong elements of jazz. You'll get to hear live music and drink delicious coffee, and all the while help the Theatre. Come out for the music and help support the arts in Western North Carolina."

"Each of these concerts will be fabulous," Freeburg said. "Our aim is to offer the best in classical music but to reach beyond the strictly 'classical' and show how contemporary music — jazz — can be closely related."

"On behalf of Hendersonville Community Theatre, we are very grateful to the Music Foundation of Western North Carolina for sponsoring this series," Jim Walker, HCT artistic director and co-managing director, said. "Even though the concerts are free to the general public, we are looking for business sponsors to help underwrite the program. If interested in supporting a great collaborative artistic effort, please contact us." The Theatre can be reached at (828) 692-1082. You may also visit HendersonvilleTheatre.org for more details.

No, don't give up on those New Year's resolutions quite yet

From the American Counseling Association

Admit it. You've already forgotten those New Year's resolutions you made just a few weeks ago and most likely you didn't succeed in accomplishing most of them (any of them?). But it isn't too late to give them a second chance and it is worth doing.

Serious New Year's resolutions are never easy to bring to fruition. The key to success is to approach the changes you'd like to make in ways that will help you succeed.

Start by being realistic. Expecting giant lifestyle changes to happen quickly or easily is asking for failure. Our bad habits usually developed in small increments over a long period of time. So, changing them will also take time and probably will happen in small steps, too. You're not going to lose those 35 pounds next week, but you might lose 4 or 5 pounds next month.

In some ways, changing habits or behaviors is similar to undertaking a home remodeling project. You need to start by accepting three basic realities:

- It's going to take longer than you hoped.
- It's going to be more difficult than you expected.
- It may even take more than one try to reach your goal.

Accepting these concepts can give you a realistic foundation from which to plan and take actions that will bring success.

A first step is to forget rigid time deadlines and instead set achievable mini-goals that will eventually lead to your final goal. You probably can't stop smoking tomorrow, but you can make an appointment to talk to your doctor or check out the local hospital's smoking cessation program.

For weight loss, it's easy to feel depressed and like a failure when you don't drop that five pounds in week one, or when you slip up and eat that big dessert. So instead, set smaller goals that are easier to achieve. Maybe it's just skipping that morning donut this week. Next week, perhaps it's taking a daily walk after dinner. Most important is not giving up. Yes, you will make mistakes. Yes, you might even fail one or more times. Studies report losing weight often takes multiple tries and quitting smoking as many as eight attempts.

It's important to accept that you're human and fallible, but also quite capable of giving it another go. Try again and you just might have one less resolution to make next New Year's.

Longer term, the company has several growth initiatives which will be made feasible through the investments made at the site. Opening a sixth production site has been a strategic objective for nearly two years. We are thrilled to partner with South Carolina and Greenville County; both teams have been wonderful to work with and supportive of our vision for a bigger and better PL Developments," according to PL Developments President Evan Singer.

South Carolina Governor Nikki Haley added, "We couldn't be more excited to welcome PL Developments to the South Carolina family and to its new home in Greenville County. This $45 million investment, and the 450 new jobs it means for Greenville County, represents the beginning of a new partnership between our state and this fantastic company that will make a real difference in the lives of South Carolinians." Located at 513 Old Griffin Road in Piedmont, the company's new Greenville County facility will include enhanced logistics capabilities along with new pharmaceutical manufacturing and packaging capabilities for the company. Logistics operations at the Old Griffin Road site will commence in early 2017 with new manufacturing capabilities expected to begin in early 2018. Once commissioned, the Old Griffin Road location will be PL Developments' second operation in South Carolina and sixth in the country.

The Coordinating Council for Economic Development has approved job development credits related to this project. A $750,000 Set Aside grant was also awarded to Greenville County to assist with the costs of real property improvements.

Tips, foods and products to maintain muscle into your advanced years (StatePoint) As the population of Americans over age 55 soars toward 70 million over the next decade, more Americans are searching beyond avoiding wrinkles and fine lines for tips, foods and products that will help them live the lives they desire well into their advanced years -- and this includes muscle maintenance.

As people age past 30, they can lose up to eight percent of their muscle mass each decade. Finding a way to maintain muscle through the years has been one of the more elusive parts of the healthy aging quest.

"Muscle loss can really take its toll. Even simple movements like opening a jar of pickles or gardening, become more difficult," said medical director of NYU Langone's Preston Robert Tisch Center for Men's Health, Dr. Steven Lamm. "When you have less muscle mass, the muscles you have must work harder. It can be exhausting."

Per Dr. Lamm, there are a few easy steps that can keep your muscles healthy as you age -- and new research shows there may even finally be a way to curb muscle loss associated with aging.

Be Active

One of the most effective ways to keep muscles in tip-top shape is to be active. Even quick exercises done regularly can make a huge difference in your muscle health. "Try the long route when you're taking the dog for a walk or take the stairs instead of the escalator. Staying active can also maintain joint health," said Dr. Lamm.

Feed Your Muscles

Most people know that protein is a building block for muscle, yet don't get enough of it. Sleep also feeds muscle growth and recovery. "I tell my patients to aim for a regular sleep schedule of eight or nine hours each night to promote optimal muscle mass, heart health and brain health," said Dr. Lamm.

Try a Supplement

You cannot halt aging, but new research shows you may be able to curb the muscle loss that comes with getting older. A new clinical study showed that a daily supplementation with the super antioxidant, Pycnogenol (pic-noj-en-all), improved muscle function and endurance and reduced some of the symptoms accompanying muscle loss. "I've recommended Pycnogenol to my patients for years as a natural extract for healthy aging, and as an important building block of wellness. This research builds on those findings," says Dr.

Lamm. Pycnogenol is one of the most researched ingredients on the market, and decades of research demonstrate the benefits of this natural extract for cognitive support, joint health, and skin health that all contribute to an overall healthier self as we age. It's available in more than 700 dietary supplements, multi-vitamins and health products worldwide. For more information, visit pycnogenol.com.

Muscle maintenance is a key to healthy aging. Luckily, there are many steps you can take to prevent muscle loss and stay strong through the years.

Drivers paying highest New Year's gas prices since 2014

Charlotte, N.C. – The New Year began with increased gas prices reaching the national average of $2.34 per gallon. The national average has moved higher for 34 of the past 35 days, largely due to market reactions to last fall's OPEC deal. Pump prices increased by five cents on the first week on the year, by 18 cents per gallon on the month, and are up by 34 cents on the year.

North Carolina's average price of gas was $2.26, which was 34 cents higher than last year's average. South Carolina's average was $2.10, and although it is currently the cheapest average in the country it was 36 cents higher than this time last year.

The South remains home to some of the nation's least expensive markets for retail gasoline, as of the first day of 2017: South Carolina ($2.10), Alabama ($2.13), Tennessee ($2.13), Mississippi ($2.14), Texas ($2.14), Arkansas ($2.15) and Louisiana ($2.15). The region saw some temporary inventory declines last week due to exports and a power outage at CITGO's Corpus Christi, Texas, refinery that resulted in flaring and excess emissions, according to OPIS.

Moving into 2017, retail prices will continue to hinge on the ability of cartel countries to successfully implement production cuts, but retail averages are likely to increase leading up to the summer driving season as seasonal refinery maintenance gets underway this spring.

Both crude oil benchmarks closed out the year posting the largest annual gains since 2009, with Brent gaining 52 percent and West Texas Intermediate gaining 45 percent to close the year. These gains can largely be attributed to the OPEC agreement, a deal brokered by OPEC and non-OPEC countries to cut crude oil production by 1.8 million barrels per day in an effort to rebalance the global oil supply.

Additionally, as 2016 came to a close, U.S. gasoline production reached a record high of 10.537 million bbl for the last week in December. Typically, domestic demand falls in January so higher gasoline production may lead to a stock build in the coming weeks and could have a bearish market impact on gasoline. In 2017, traders will continue to monitor whether participating countries adhere to the OPEC agreement and the rate at which U.S. gasoline production increases. At the close of formal trading session on December 30 on the NYMEX, WTI closed out the year down five cents to settle at $53.72 per barrel.

Motorists can find current gas prices along their route with the free AAA Mobile app for iPhone, iPad and Android. The app can also be used to map a route, find discounts, book a hotel and access AAA roadside assistance. Learn more at AAA.com/mobile.

Tips to prepare your vehicle and home for severe winter weather

Severe winter weather—including snow, ice, and freezing rain—is a hallmark of winter. AAA Carolinas offers the following tips for driving in winter weather and preparing your home for potentially icy conditions:

DRIVING ON ICE:

Avoid unnecessary travel – No one can drive well on ice. Listen to authorities' recommendations and delay travel until road conditions improve.

Accelerate, decelerate and turn slowly – Everything takes longer in icy conditions, so be sure to leave enough space between you and the vehicle in front of you – a following distance of 8-10 seconds.

Don't stop if you can avoid it – There's a big difference in the amount of inertia it takes to start moving from a full stop versus how much it takes to get moving while still rolling.

Don't power up hills – Applying extra gas on icy roads just starts your wheels spinning. Try to get a little inertia going before you reach the hill and let that inertia carry you to the top. Avoid stopping while going up a hill.

Don't use cruise control – You may need to quickly reduce your speed by lifting off the accelerator, which cannot be easily accomplished on slick roads when cruise control is engaged.

To get out of a skid – Lightly take your foot off the brake or gas and try to regain traction. Always look and steer where you want to go.

Keep an emergency kit in your vehicle – Include an ice scraper, kitty litter or sand for traction, jumper cables, cell phone with a car charger, blankets, gloves, hats, food, water and any needed medications. Be sure to bundle up with a winter coat, boots, gloves and a hat in case you get stranded.

If you become snow-bound – Stay with your vehicle. It provides temporary shelter and makes it easier for rescuers to locate you.

Stay on major routes – If you must drive, stick to thoroughfares that have been plowed or treated and stay in the most recently cleared lane.

Use extra caution on bridges and overpasses – They freeze because they are exposed to air on all of their surfaces.

Fill up on windshield washer fluid – Salt brine and sand from treated roadways will build up on your windshield, so be sure to have enough washer fluid to keep it clear. Opt for windshield washer fluid with a low freezing point to help keep ice and snow from sticking to your windshield.

Avoid distractions – Power off or store your cell phone, turn down the music and focus on driving.

Upstate to host Third Annual Groundhog Day Luncheon

The USC Upstate Athletics Department will host its Third Annual Groundhog Day Luncheon to mark the start of the 2017 baseball and softball seasons on Thursday, Feb. 2 at 11:30 a.m. in the Campus Life Center Ballroom.

Upstate is selling tickets for the luncheon. Tickets cost $10 for the general public and $6 for all USC Upstate faculty, staff, students and former players. For more ticket information or to purchase tickets, please contact Nathan Dixon by email at ndixon@uscupstate.edu or by phone at (864) 503-5865.

The Groundhog Day Luncheon will feature head baseball coach Matt Fincher and head softball coach Chris Hawkins speaking about their teams and the upcoming season. Attendees will also get to meet members of both programs. The menu for the luncheon consists of hamburgers, hot dogs, nacho chips with cheese sauce, cole slaw and cookies. Peanuts and cracker jacks will also be available at each table.

The Upstate baseball and softball teams have enjoyed a large measure of success in recent years. The softball team has advanced to the NCAA Tournament four straight years from 2013-

16, has been ranked in the national Top 25 polls and had several individual award winners in the ASUN and nationally. The baseball team has battled for conference titles and also has had several players drafted and sign with various Major League Baseball organizations.

The softball team kicks off its season on Thursday, Feb. 9 with a doubleheader at home against Gardner-Webb beginning at 2 p.m., while the baseball team opens its season on Friday, Feb. 17 at 4 p.m. against Virginia Tech from Harley Park.

Two Valkyries earn internships with Reach Out and Read Program

Two Converse student-athletes were selected to take part in the Reach Out and Read Internship program. This internship specializes in the Social Systems Leadership aspect of the program. The internship begins January 2017 and runs through the end of the Spring semester of 2017.

Hadiyah Lewis, a member of the Converse Lacrosse team, and Elaina Smith, member of the Converse Golf team, were selected as recipients for the internship. Lewis is a Psychology major and Smith is majoring in Deaf Education.

Reach Out and Read is a nonprofit organization that gives young children a foundation for success by incorporating books into pediatric care and encouraging families to read aloud together.

Adding the Social Systems Leadership Internship with Reach Out and Read, Lewis and Smith will dive deep into the aspects of successful program implementation by focusing on multiple areas to learn how the social systems

environment works

and what it will take to make an impact.
