BMW breaks ground on new high-voltage battery assembly factory in Woodruff

The BMW Group took a major step in June towards building electric vehicles in the United States as it broke ground for a new high-voltage battery assembly plant in Woodruff. Named "Plant Woodruff," the BMW facility will produce sixth-generation batteries to supply fully electric vehicles at nearby BMW Manufacturing in Spartanburg. More than 300 jobs will be created onsite at Plant Woodruff with the opportunity to grow.

"We're making the BMW Group electric. Our new battery assembly plant in Woodruff will soon play an important role in our electric future here in the USA," said Ilka Horstmeier, Member of the Board of Management of BMW AG responsible for Human Resources and Real Estate. "Through the Woodruff plant, we expand our footprint in the state of South Carolina. At the same time, we are taking our associates with us in this transformation. Our new Technical Training Center at the Spartanburg plant will prepare our 11,000 associates for the future. In this way, we are taking responsibility as a reliable employer and offer future-proof jobs at the same time."

"Today's groundbreaking is the start of a new era at Plant Spartanburg as we prepare to produce fully electric BMW X models for the world," said Dr. Robert Engelhorn, president and CEO of BMW Manufacturing. "The road to the future begins here in Woodruff as we build on our legacy of producing high-quality vehicles right here in the U.S. Plant Woodruff will be state-of-the-art in terms of sustainability, flexibility, and digitalization."

Last October, BMW Group Chairman Oliver Zipse announced a new $1.7 billion investment in its U.S. operations, including $1 billion to prepare Plant Spartanburg for the production of fully electric vehicles and $700 million to build a new high-voltage battery assembly plant. The Woodruff facility, located on 315 acres near the city, will be more than one million square feet in size that includes construction of a technology building and support buildings such as a cafeteria, fire department, and energy center.

"I am proud to celebrate BMW's groundbreaking for Plant Woodruff. This new high-voltage battery assembly factory once again proves that South Carolina is a leader in the EV industry and furthers our reputation as an automotive powerhouse," said Governor Henry McMaster. "We look forward to continuing our strong partnership with BMW as they continue to help move South Carolina forward."

"BMW continuously recognizes the many possibilities of doing business in South Carolina," said Secretary of Commerce Harry M. Lightsey III. "The company's innovation, fueled by the highly skilled workforce that our state provides, means Plant Woodruff will help drive future growth that will impact the entire state. Congratulations, BMW!"

BMW Group's "Local for Local" Principle

As part of the BMW Group's "local for local" approach, the company will purchase battery cells for its electric vehicles from partner AESC, which is building a new 30 GWh battery cell factory in Florence, with BMW as its first customer. AESC broke ground for its new plant on June 7. They will produce newly developed round lithium-ion battery cells, specifically designed for the sixth generation of BMW eDrive technology. The new battery format will increase energy density by more than 20 percent and improve charging speed and range by up to 30 percent. At the same time, CO2 emissions from cell production will be reduced by up to 60 percent through the partial use of secondary lithium, cobalt, and nickel material, as well as renewable energy for production.

Battery cells produced at the AESC facility in Florence will be shipped to Plant Woodruff, where the cells will be used to manufacture batteries for fully electric BMW X models at Plant Spartanburg. By 2030, Plant Spartanburg will build at least six fully electric BMWs.

Upskilling the BMW Workforce

The new BMW Technical Training Center (TTC), which opened in October, will play a critical role in preparing associates to build fully electric vehicles. Plant Spartanburg already produces three plug-in hybrid electric vehicles - the BMW X3 xDrive30e, BMW X5 xDrive50e, and the BMW XM - and several hundred associates already have EV training. The TTC will be at the center of all EV training for North and South America to ensure associates master the skills to set new industry standards.

"Our job is to put together a toolbox for our associates that will be the foundation for a full and satisfying career at BMW," said Sherry McCraw, vice president of Human Resources. "We must capitalize on our team's existing skill sets, support them with the appropriate training, and ensure they are well equipped for the EV journey ahead."

Using Sustainable Methods at Plant Woodruff

The BMW Group's philosophy of promoting sustainability in all its facilities will be promoted at the Woodruff plant as well. This was important in the building's design and use of equipment. Some of the innovations include:

- Plant Woodruff will be operated without fossil fuels and will use 100 percent green electricity. In addition, CO2 emissions per vehicle across the lifecycle will fall by 40 percent by 2030.
- The structure is "solar ready," meaning it supports the installation of a rooftop solar photovoltaic (PV) system in the future.
- The facility uses a highly energy efficient concept with only 67 kwh/m<sup>2</sup>a energy consumption.
- Smart LED lighting and occupancy sensors combined with dimming strategies to reduce energy consumption for lighting.
- Smart LED lighting and occupancy sensors combined with dimming strategies to reduce energy consumption for lighting.
- Significant reduction in water consumption at the plant. Rainwater will also be harvested and used.
