Eva Mae Smith outside her home in 2020.

'She's really blessed'

By Jessica Pickens
 Courtesy of Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System

In 1981, Eva Mae Smith was in pain.

"I remember my heart was hurting a lot," Smith said.

Smith's heart was hurting because two of her four heart valves were blocked.

"We were told one valve was blocked, and the other was like a melted straw," said her daughter, Betty Fuller. "So, they had to take two veins out of her leg and bypass her heart."

On March 17, 1981, Smith became the first patient to receive open-heart surgery at Spartanburg General Hospital, the former name of Spartanburg Medical Center.

Nearly 39 years later, the Spartanburg native is still alive thanks to the lifesaving surgery performed by Dr. Henry Kelley.

"He did tell her that if she didn't have the surgery, she would have passed on," said Fuller.

"I wasn't afraid"

During the surgery, all of Smith's 10 children were at Spartanburg General Hospital, waiting and praying.

"I wasn't afraid going in, because I went and prayed," Smith said. "One of my daughters was crying, and I told her, 'Be quiet, I'm all right.' I knew I would be all right."

While open-heart surgery was new for Spartanburg General Hospital patients in 1981, today it is more commonplace, according to cardiothoracic surgeon Steven Leyland, MD, of Medical Group of the Carolinas —

Cardiothoracic & Vascular Surgery.

"The procedures are similar today, but generally they are performed on patients who are much sicker now," Dr. Leyland said. "Open-heart surgery is much safer due to advances in technology."

Today, cardiothoracic surgeons can often avoid open-heart surgery with new minimally invasive procedures. Treatments through Spartanburg Regional's structural heart program help treat patients who aren't candidates for open-heart procedures, with options like TAVR, Watchman and MitraClip.

"Due to the complexity of most open-heart surgeries, they are not minimally invasive, but we perform them when appropriate," Dr. Leyland said. "Heart surgery is primarily for coronary artery blockages and worn out valves."

Smith remained in the hospital for two months after her surgery. However, today's open-heart surgery patient typically stays in the hospital for only five to 10 days.

The week following her surgery, hospital staff let Smith speak with other patients awaiting open-heart surgery to encourage them that they would be OK.

"I just told them it will be all right, it isn't anything hard," Smith said. "Just believe in God; He'll take care of you."

Following the procedure, Smith, Dr. Kelley and his staff were celebrated for the landmark surgery at the Piedmont Club in Spartanburg.

Paving the way for heart excellence

Dr. Kelley's surgery and Smith's successful recovery exhibit Spartanburg Regional's long history of high-quality heart care. This paved the way for the South's first robotic endoscopic beating heart surgery to be performed by Dr. Leyland at Spartanburg Medical Center in 2008.

Spartanburg Medical Center was also the first hospital in the state to receive the Chest Pain Center with Primary PCI with Resuscitation Accreditation from the American College of Cardiology in 2018. The PCI designation means that physicians use a specialized treatment, called percutaneous coronary intervention (PCI), as the primary treatment for acute heart attacks. This is the highest level of accreditation for chest pain centers.

Today, her children are thankful Smith exceeded the expectations of the surgery.

"They said maybe she would last 10 years after the surgery, but look at her now, 39 years later," Fuller said. "She's really blessed."

The surgery allowed Smith to continue living and doing what she loves.

"I went to church and sang in the choir," Smith said. "My doctor told me a month ago, 'You keep on singing and praising the Lord. You're doing good.'"

If you are concerned about heart symptoms, please speak with your primary care physician. Learn more about the services provided at Spartanburg Regional Heart Center.

When it's time to take action

From the American Counseling Association

Most of us have few hesitations about taking actions to correct life's small problems. We might complain about poor restaurant service, return yesterday's defective purchase, or visit our doctor about a troubling health issue.

But are we ready and willing to take action when the problem we're facing turns out to be the actual life we're living?

Too often our response to real life issues and disappointments is to simply push them aside, or to feel sorry and depressed that things aren't going right. Unfortunately, allowing yourself to wallow in anger or blame or feelings of helplessness when life isn't giving you all you expect from it, doesn't fix anything. Instead, you need to turn such feelings into positive energy to help in building the better life you desire.

A starting point is simply sitting down with yourself and identifying what things have you feeling that your life isn't working out the way you once planned. While the realities of daily living often take a toll on the optimistic visions we all once had, you need not surrender totally to the problems and shortcomings you face.

Instead, you can begin to take small steps toward living the life you really want. One step is simply finding your own voice. It's necessary to be able to express your feelings when things are disappointing you. Speaking up doesn't mean that you're being selfish or overbearing. You simply want to be honest and to have others better understand what's troubling you.

If the demands of an overly-busy schedule don't leave you time for people and events that would make you feel more positive about your life, learn to say, "No" when necessary. Your aim should be for the changes, even small ones, that help you move toward the life you want.

Identify your strengths and interests and then put time into nourishing them. Begin by taking one daily action that moves you closer to your desired life. It can be something simple, like rewriting your resume, cleaning out old files or a cluttered closet, or reconnecting with an old friend.

Your goal is to create an overall balance in your life. A life that is too busy often ends up without room for those people and activities that can help you better connect with the real you and the life you feel you should be living.

United Way of the Piedmont and WSPA raise over $51,000 for disaster relief

United Way of the Piedmont recently announced that in partnership with WSPA 7 News and the support of corporate partners, over $51,000 has been raised to help families in need following the tornadoes and severe storms in early February.

WSPA hosted a phone bank on Monday where United Way volunteers accepted calls from viewers wishing to donate. The phone bank lasted two and a half hours, and with the support of WSPA viewers, raised over $14,000. Additionally, BMW Manufacturing Co., Carolina Alliance Bank, Contec, Duke Energy, Michelin and Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System contributed $37,000 collectively.

Funds will be distributed to help individuals and families who have been displaced or are at risk of being displaced by the storms. Financial assistance is needed to help cover expenses such as tree or debris removal, relocation expenses, temporary hotel stays, hot meals, or replacement of furniture lost in the storm. Many families hit hardest are uninsured or underinsured and these expenses are enough to threaten their financial stability.

To donate to relief efforts, please visit United Way's website: <https://uwpiedmont.org/AftertheStorm>

German SAP Consultancy abatUS announces new operations in Greenville County, creating 35 jobs

Greenville - abatUS, a subsidiary of Bremen, Germany-based abat AG and sister company of Adah International, has announced new operations in Greenville County to serve its expanding South-eastern markets. The company's $10 million investment is projected to create 35 new jobs.

An SAP Gold Partner, abatUS supports original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) and suppliers holistically and flexibly, starting with project planning and conceptualizing all the way to implementation, training, maintenance and optimization. abatUS specializes in consulting and development for logistics and automotive, process optimization with SAP solutions, and application management services.

"After much deliberation, we chose Greenville over other locations due to its proximity to customers and its commitment to developing talent. The reception and support we have received from the Greenville Area Development Corporation was unparalleled," said abatAdah Group President and CEO Kirk Atkinson.

Geared towards European companies which have a US subsidiary or intend to establish one, abatUS hires and develops teams of international experts needed to plan, implement and maintain SAP ERP systems for both automotive manufacturers, discrete manufacturers and logistics organizations. With approximately 40 employees currently in the United States, abatUS provides customers with facility, production and logistics planning, project management, operations rollout and personnel training in tandem with its sister company Adah International.

Kirk Atkinson

"Congratulations to abatUS for establishing new operations in South Carolina," said South Carolina Governor Henry McMaster. "This $10 million investment and the 35 jobs it brings will make a real difference in Greenville County, and we look forward to watching this company grow and succeed there for a very long time."

Located at 1 North Main Street, 4th Floor in Greenville, abatUS supports regional customers including Daimler, BLG Logistics, Swiss Krono and BMW, while also providing expertise to new relationships seeking expertise in SAP and industrial optimization.

"When companies like abatUS choose to locate here, it's a win-win for everyone involved. Not only will this create jobs and wealth for South Carolinians, but it will give this company access to one of the most talented workforces in the entire country," added South Carolina Secretary of Commerce Bobby Hitt.

South Carolina operations will be led by abatUS executives Kirk Atkinson, President and CEO of holding company abatAdah Group, Inc., and Itha Venter, who serves as Senior Consultant and will directly manage the South Carolina office of abatUS.

A native of Birmingham, Mr. Atkinson began his career with positions of progressive responsibility in project management with World Business Advisors, economic development with Tuscaloosa County (AL) Industrial Development Authority, and operations with BLG Logistics. While with BLG, he received German language and international relations training, and worked on project teams assisting with new logistics operations in England, France and Germany. In 2015, he chose to concentrate on his company, Adah International, Inc. and in 2019 merged with long-time customer abatUS, LLC. Both companies maintain their brands while being owned by holding company, abatAdah Group, Inc., of which he is President/CEO.

Ms. Venter is a native of South Africa and began her career participating in SAP software implementations in South Africa, the United States and UK focused in the automotive industry. Manufacturing consulting morphed into logistics consulting and she has also led process and supply chain improvement initiatives for major corporations in Southeast Asia. She joined abatUS in January to establish and manage the South Carolina office, and to support customers in maximizing their IT investments.

"We are looking forward to expand our business relations with known and new customers and become the preferred consulting company in the Upstate that IT professionals will want to be part of, while contributing to the regional economy," said Ms. Venter.

"We welcome abatUS to Greenville County and salute their decision to establish operations here as a new and valuable member of our vibrant business community," noted Greenville County Council Chairman and Greenville Area Development Corporation Board Member H.G. "Butch" Kirven. "They bring a global reputation for excellence in process and project optimization, offering new concepts to the advanced manufacturing and logistic community."

The company's new offices are fully operational. Individuals interested in joining the abatUS team should visit <https://www.abat.de/en/career-abatus>.

"As globally recognized experts supporting international manufacturers and logistics organizations, abatUS is a welcome addition to Greenville's international business community. We welcome them to our city and wish abatUS continued growth and success here," stated City of Greenville Mayor Knox White.

Taking a top down approach to home exterior updates

(StatePoint) Whether you want to boost the beauty of your home for your own enjoyment or you're looking to sell in the near future, experts recommend taking a top-down approach to evaluate the outside of your home.

"When making updates to your home exterior, it's helpful to think of how all the parts of the whole work together to create a unified look," says Kate Smith, chief color maven with Sensational Color.

With that in mind, here are a few remodeling ideas to get you started:

The Roof

A new roof not only adds aesthetic appeal, it can add value too. Indeed, Remodeling's Cost vs. Value 2020 report shows that a roof replacement can have a return-on-investment of over 60 percent.

Composite roofing is particularly durable, long-lasting and low-maintenance, and an all-around smart investment. Not only does a high-quality roof help home-sellers get foot traffic, but the low-maintenance aspect really resonates with house-hunters. An attractive, more affordable alternative to the real thing, the composite slate and shake roofing options available from manufacturers like DaVinci Roofscapes, for example, reduce pesky maintenance concerns, offering impact-, fire- and wind-resistance, as well as the peace of mind that comes with a strong warranty.

This is also a good choice for both those with a clear color palette in mind, and those who might need some direction, as free resources on the DaVinci Roofscapes site include a Color Visualizer offering users the ability to see how different colors may look on their home exteriors, as well as a variety of free ebooks with project inspiration and advice. To learn more, visit www.davinicroofscapes.com.

"Using these free color tools can be both fun and empowering," says Smith. "They take the guesswork out of crafting a pleasing exterior color palette for the home and help create increased curb appeal."

Siding

If your home sports traditional siding, you may have noticed that the tiles contract and expand in fluctuating weather conditions and temperatures. What's more, the color of these often-times thin and flimsy materials can fade quickly.

Rather than replacing siding with more of the same, consider composite siding built to resist impact, fire, mold, algae, insects, salt air and high winds. The hand-split shake siding available from DaVinci Roofscapes is made of virgin resins, UV and thermal stabilizers, plus a highly-specialized fire retardant. Whether you add accent panels with composite siding or go for the whole house, this can add a hassle-free aesthetic benefit to your home and boost its value.

Walkways

Cracked or uneven walkways and steps are not only an eyesore, they can present a tripping hazard to you and guests. Evaluate whether it's time to give yours an overhaul. Be sure to select low-maintenance materials that complement the look of the other elements of your exterior. This is a good time to consider lighting that adds drama to the walkway at night and makes for safer walking.

Sprucing up? Go for high-impact projects that boost curb appeal and add value to the home.

Celebrate South Carolina rivers during Art Day at the S.C. State Museum

Columbia - The South Carolina State Museum will celebrate art in South Carolina during Art Day, Saturday, March 7, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. The signature event will feature a variety of programs highlighting South Carolina's rivers showcasing the work of the state's artists. From exhibit gallery tours and live art demonstrations to live musical performances and hands on activities, Art Day will be full of creative fun.

Art Day will be one of the last opportunities to experience the museum's Reflections on the River art exhibition, which features works from South Carolina artists. Reflections on the River explores the significance of our state's rivers on culture, industry and landscape, as well as the ways in which they have inspired artists in the state. From 16th century engravings and Catawba pottery, to contemporary paintings and photographs, the exhibition highlights a variety of art from the museum's permanent collection. Museum Art Curator, Amy Chalmers will give two special tours of the exhibit at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

In a nod to our current blockbuster exhibit, The International Exhibition of Sherlock Holmes, guests will get to put their detective skills to task by learning how to read a painting from discovering hidden clues. Chalmers will talk guests through learning how to identify evidence in paintings that will help the observer learn more about it, like where it might have come from or when it was made.

Guests will get an up-close look at how artists make their visions come to life with live demonstrations. Rev. Johnnie Simmons, an artist who is featured in Reflections on the River along with photographer Charles Hite, and painter Rick Wells are among the artists, print-makers, painters and 3D artists that will be on-site throughout the day.

Art day will also include kid friendly, hands-on craft activities like paper marbling, origami and collage.

Art Day activities are included with museum general admission or membership. Visit scmuseum.org to learn more.

Three ways to weather the 2020 tax season

(StatePoint) Over half of U.S. adults say financial stress negatively impacted their personal health and work performance in 2018, according to new research from Lincoln Financial Group. When it comes to tax season, preparation is key to easing anxiety, according to experts.

“Tax season can be stressful for many people, but it’s also an opportunity to strengthen your financial plan,” says Michael Corr, chief estate and business planning strategist, Lincoln Financial Advisors, National Planning Team. “The good news is that there are some simple ways to manage the process.”

To weather the 2020 tax season, Corr offers these tips:

Get the 411

Whether preparing your own tax return or paying a professional, good organization saves time and money. In addition to collecting the common tax documents (e.g., W-2s, 1099s and mortgage interest statements), you should gather receipts, evidence of contributions to charities and 529 plans, and basic information on assets sold during 2019.

Also consider milestones that impact taxes, such as marriage, divorce, birth of a child, adoption and sale of a home. Organizing this information is the first step toward ensuring timely filing.

The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act significantly increased the standard deduction for federal tax purposes. For the 2019 tax year, the standard deduction is $12,200 for individuals and $24,400 for married couples filing jointly. This higher deduction amount means many taxpayers won’t itemize deductions, thereby simplifying tax return preparation.

Be Proactive

Consider what actions you can take prior to the end of tax season to lessen its financial burden.

For example, if you qualify and act prior to April 15, you may deduct contributions to an IRA up to $6,000 ($7,000 if you’re over 50) on the 2019 income tax return. Maximum Simplified Employee Pension IRA contributions of $56,000 for 2019 can be made any time prior to the tax filing deadline, including extensions.

Or, if you participate in a high deductible health plan, you may be eligible to contribute to a health savings account with pre-tax dollars through April 15. For the 2019 tax year, the contribution limit is $3,500 if you’re single and $7,000 for families, with an additional $1,000 catch-up contribution for those 55 or older.

Use Technology

Embrace these technological advances to reduce tax preparation and filing burdens:

- Whether self-preparing or hiring a professional, tax information from documents filed with the IRS (W-2s, 1099s, etc.) can be downloaded directly into tax-prep software, so be sure to access electronic versions of these documents.

- Online banking makes it easy to manipulate account information and organize data about relevant expenses paid during the year, like estimated tax payments, medical and tuition payments and business expenses.

- The IRS has offered the opportunity for electronic filing of tax returns for several years. Taxpayers who e-file typically receive acknowledgement that their returns have been filed and get their refunds faster than those who paper file.

From market volatility to managing debt, there are many causes of financial stress today. However, with some prudent strategies, you can greatly reduce your tax-related anxiety.
