Jones receives the 2016-2017 Jonas Scholarship

Monique Jones, an instructor in the Mary Black School of Nursing at the University of South Carolina Upstate, received the 2016-2017 Jonas Scholarship. She is currently attending the Georgia Baptist College of Nursing of Mercer University in Atlanta where she is working on her Ph.D. in nursing.

The Jonas Family Fund was established in 2006 to advance the nursing profession through grants and programs. The purpose of this program is to increase the number of doctoral-prepared faculty available to teach in nursing schools nationwide. The funds from the Jonas Foundation are matched by the Georgia Baptist College of Nursing and are provided as part of a total scholarship package.

Upstate couple pleads guilty to mail theft conspiracy

Columbia - Acting United States Attorney Beth Drake stated recently that Cary L. Wright, age 38, and Tanya A. Wright, age 29, both of Greenville, pled guilty in federal court in Greenville, to a conspiracy to commit mail theft. United States District Judge Bruce Howe Hendricks, of Charleston, accepted the plea and will impose sentence after she has reviewed the presentence report which will be prepared by the U.S. Probation Office.

Evidence presented at the change of plea hearing established that the defendants stole mail in and around Greenville County in an effort to obtain bank account numbers, routing numbers, and identification information. Once in possession of this material they would create counterfeit checks and negotiate them to obtain money for methamphetamine. On June 10th, a search warrant was executed at the home of the Wrights in Greenville. Items recovered from the residence included, but was not limited to, numerous pieces of mail belonging to others, checks stolen from the mail, financial transaction cards, blank check stock, counterfeit checks, and a computer used for check counterfeiting.

Ms. Drake stated the maximum penalty defendants can receive is a fine of $250,000 and/or imprisonment for 5 years, plus a special assessment of $100.

Upstate professor publishes new book about civil war in El Salvador

Greenville - Furman University History Professor Dr. Erik Ching has written a new book about civil war in El Salvador.

Stories of Civil War in El Salvador: A Battle Over Memory is published by The University of North Carolina Press, which offers this description:

Ching joined the Furman faculty in 1998 after earning master's and doctorate degrees at the University of California, Santa Barbara. At Furman, he teaches Modern Latin America, History of Africa, Revolution in Modern Latin America, and Origins of Global Poverty. He also teaches study away programs in Latin America and Africa.

Wofford adds new majors, minors and programs

International affairs, film and digital media, MENA and more offered

New majors, minors and programs are providing Wofford College students with courses of study that mirror changes in the world in which they live. Through courses added in the 2015-16 academic year and more added for the 2016-17 year, students have the opportunity to become engaged in international affairs, Middle Eastern and North African cultures, film and digital media, and more.

Students at Wofford now may major in government or international affairs, with international affairs added to the name of the department. The majors offer students a foundational understanding of government and politics at all levels to prepare them for leadership in the community, nation and world. Building on Wofford's broad liberal education, the department challenges students to deliberate on a diversity of ideas of justice, experiences of politics and structures of power.

By majoring in government, students also may select optional concentrations in American politics and political theory. The international affair major offers an optional global linking experience.

An online time capsule

Hospital and library partner bringing archives online

Boxes filled with 95 years of hospital history used to be locked away for safe keeping in dark rooms.

Now, thanks to a partnership between Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System (SRHS) and Spartanburg County Public Libraries (SCPL), the photographic archives of the Spartanburg Regional Healthcare Museum have gone digital.

These digital archives went live this month to celebrate SRHS's 95th birthday.

The collaboration creates a digital time capsule, allowing the community to delve into documents and photos dating back to 1921.

Not only does the new archive better preserve delicate historical papers, but it also allows easier access to the healthcare system's history. Prior to this, the only way anyone could see the collection was to physically visit Spartanburg Medical Center.

"The growth and development of the Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System is central to the history of Spartanburg County and its residents," said Steve Smith, coordinator for local history and special collections at SCPL. "There so are many valuable individual stories captured in the SRHS museum's collection. They illustrate care for people, progress in health care, and improvement in our quality of life. Doctors, nurses, employees and staff, administrators, educators, and researchers are all represented. This project will provide broadened access to a vital part of our community's collective memory."

"At SRHS, we are committed to collecting, preserving, and exhibiting medical artifacts that tell the story of healthcare in the Spartanburg region. The library is committed to creating access to documents and photographs that tell Spartanburg's story. Todd Stephens, SCPL's County Librarian, magnified the vision for this project, explaining that this partnership would allow us to expand the walls of our museum," said SRHS historian Denise Patterson. "People love coming to look at the historical photos in the museum and hanging in the hospital. Now, they will be able to engage with these archives even further."

The museum partnership was made possible from grants received from the Spartanburg Regional Foundation and the Spartanburg County Public Libraries. The library also has partnerships with the South Carolina Digital Library and the Digital Library of America, meaning that the documents and images are also linked and available through online resources, statewide and nationwide.

"The library has worked closely with the hospital for the last two years on the digitization component of this piece," said Gretchen Maultsby, director of collection management for SCPL. "The library is devoted to helping institutions maintain historical records of the entire community."

The Spartanburg Regional Healthcare Museum is located at Spartanburg Medical Center near the main lobby and across from the gift shop. On display are photographs, documents and artifacts that document the history of medical care in the Spartanburg area from the 1920s to present. Items are added to the collection almost weekly from donors, and SRHS has recently acquired more than 70 additional boxes of photographs and documents. As these items are accessioned and contextualized, more items will be added to the digital collection.

Visit the Spartanburg Regional Healthcare Museum's new digital archive at the SCPL's Historical Digital Collections site at <http://digital.infodepot.org/cdm/landingpage/collection/srhs082016>.

Cowpens Elementary School receives 2016 Let's Move! Active Schools national award

Let's Move! Active Schools, part of First Lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move! Initiative, honored Cowpens Elementary School with the 2016 Let's Move! Active Schools National Award for its outstanding efforts in creating an active school environment.

The Let's Move! Active Schools National Award is the nation's top physical education and physical activity distinction for K-12 schools and celebrates a school's commitment to providing students with at least 60 minutes a day of before, during and after school physical activity. Only 544 schools across the country achieved this prestigious honor in 2016.

"Cowpens Elementary School is extremely fortunate to have a dedicated physical education teacher who truly believes that children must be physically active to be their very best," said the principal, Cindy Snead. "Sarah Justus has led the push toward making this school a healthy environment for our students and staff because she recognizes the connection between physical activity and student success."

The students and staff at Cowpens Elementary School enjoy getting active before, during and after school. Students begin their day with "The Morning Mile" as they walk laps in the gym to jumpstart their brain activity, they get moving during "Wake and Shake" on the Cougar News Program prior to the beginning of the instructional day and classrooms participate in mini-activity breaks throughout the day via GoNoodle. Other school fitness opportunities include: Girls On the Run, Cougar Club On the Move, Walk to School Day, Active Classrooms and staff challenges.

"We commend Cowpens Elementary School's model work around enhancing physical education and physical activity opportunities and inspiring students to go from zero to sixty both in the classroom and in life," said Charlene R. Burgeson, Let's Move! Active Schools Executive Director. "Cowpens Elementary School is leading the way in this generation-changing movement that is transforming our nation's schools into active and healthy hubs."

To earn a Let's Move! Active Schools National Award, a school must have met significant benchmarks in five areas: physical education; physical activity before and after school; physical activity during school; staff involvement; and family and community engagement.

Want a longer, happier life? Make friends!

From the American Counseling Association

Women, in general, tend to be more sociable than men and tend to make more and deeper friendships. But for men, developing close friendships with other men often seems difficult to do.

And yet, according to researchers, this matters. The 2005 Australian Longitudinal Study of Aging found that family relationships had little impact on longevity but that friendships appeared to increase life expectancy by as much as 22 percent.

So why is it harder for men to undertake something as seemingly pleasant, and apparently health promoting, as making good friends? Experts cite a number of reasons.

One is that men traditionally tend to be more caught up in their careers. Today they may also want to be more involved with their children than their own fathers were. The result can be little time left to develop close friendships with peers. And as men get older and leave the work force, they also tend to leave behind most of the work friendships they have enjoyed.

Another problem is that men seem to have been taught, whether consciously or otherwise, that talking about personal matters with other men simply isn't "manly." In our society, women are more at ease drawing other women out, talking about feelings and emotions, and sharing their inner lives. Men tend to avoid the personal and instead base friendships on common interests such as sports or work.

The bottom line is that men certainly can develop good and strong friendships, but it may take a bit more effort as well as overcoming some of the traditional barriers.

One starting point, especially for older men, is to get into situations where they can meet other men and where the atmosphere is right for making conversation and sharing experiences. It might mean participating at a senior center, taking courses at a local college, or volunteering with a local charity. Book clubs, walking groups, exercise classes - all are places where men can meet other men like themselves.

It then also means being willing to open up and share one's feelings and emotions. A man may have to make a real effort, at least at first, to share what he's feeling or concerned about, but when he does so that's when he's building the foundation for a real friendship.

Put in a little effort and sharing and you'll create friendships that will enrich your life, and maybe even prolong it.

Hub City Empty Bowl's annual Soup Day slated for Oct. 15

Hub City Empty Bowls's annual Soup Day — a grassroots fundraiser to help feed local hungry people — will be Saturday, Oct. 15, 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. at Chapman Cultural Center. The public is invited to select handmade pottery bowls and enjoy a wide selection of gourmet soups in exchange for $15 donations. All proceeds go towards feeding the hungry at TOTAL Ministries, a local non-profit, faith-based agency that helps citizens who are facing financial crisis.

Last year, Hub City Empty Bowls donated $26,000 to TOTAL Ministries. Carolina Clay Artists has spearheaded Hub City Empty Bowls since its inception in 2009. Since then, this group of potters has raised tens of thousands of dollars to help feed people in Spartanburg County.

For the past several months at Spartanburg Art Museum's pottery studio and West Main Artists Co-Op, the general public has been making clay pottery bowls in preparation for Soup Day. Average citizens, as well as trained potters, have made hundreds of bowls at free bowl-making events. Those bowls have been glazed and fired by volunteers and will be displayed in Spartanburg Art Museum at Chapman on Soup Day. The display of hundreds of colorful bowls is an impressive sight. Patrons can select the bowls of their liking in an exchange for $15 donations. Afterward, the patrons may enjoy a simple meal of soup, bread, and tea while enjoying live music and fellowship.

"As much fun is generated during Soup Day, we always want to keep in mind the real reason why we do this," Bruce Bowyer, Chairman of the event said.

"Latest statistics say that about 15 percent of the people in Spartanburg are what professionals call 'food insecure.' Food Insecurity causes 43,000 Spartanburg County residents to struggle with putting food on the table or keeping a roof over a families head. TOTAL Ministries can help relieve the stress of these families by making sure they can put food on the table. The Carolina Clay Artists and all of the many people who help with Empty Bowls do it because we want to make sure everyone has enough food to eat. It really is just that simple."

"The need in Spartanburg is dire," Traci Kennedy, Executive Director of TOTAL Ministries, said. "If it weren't for Hub City Empty Bowls, I don't know what we do. Carolina Clay Artists is a Godsend. We literally have people lined up outside our door needing food. Our resources are limited, and I hate to admit that we cannot meet the entire need of the community. But thanks to Empty Bowls a lot more people are able to get much needed food. If you've never been in the situation of not knowing how you will feed your children, you'll never fully understand how important Empty Bowls is."

TOTAL Ministries has become an official organizing partner with Carolina Clay Artists in the annual Hub City Empty Bowls project and the recipient of the proceeds. In past years, the proceeds were donated to various hunger-related agencies.

The soup — donated by local restaurants — will be served in Chapman's theater lobby, where the music will also be performed. More than two dozen restaurants or food providers have been recruited to donate at least five gallons of soup. Those restaurants are Andre Nguyen, Basil's Grille, Country Club of Spartanburg, Cribb's Catering, Cribb's Kitchen On Main, FATZ Café, Garner's Cafe, Gerhards Cafe, Hub City

Co-Op, Lime Leaf, Lowes, McClellan's Urban Eatery, Mon Amie Morning Cafe, Moveable Feasts, Nu-Way Restaurant & Lounge, Palmetto Palate, Renato In Centro, Skillet Restaurant, Southern BBQ, Sparks, Sun King Chinese Restaurant, II Samuels Restaurant, Wild Ace's, and Willy Taco. Donors of bread, tea, and supplies include The Beacon Drive In, Cakehead Bakery, Little River Roasting Co., Long Horn's, Wade's Southern Cooking, and Chick-fil-a.

During Soup Day, there will also a silent auction and live music. Collectors take note: the silent auction will feature finely crafted ceramics created by local and regional artists. The musicians donating their talents are Daniel Z, Fayssoux & Brandon, Rick Praytor, Frank Walker, and Mark Miller & Friends. Public drum circles, led by Melisa Emkjer, will be held in the plaza noon-1 p.m. and 2-3 p.m.

"We are getting down to the wire on this year's Hub City Empty Bowls's project," Bowyer said. "We've got the bowls, we've got the soup, now we need the people to come and get them."

The event's sponsors are Carolina Clay Artists, Spartanburg Art Museum, West Main Artists Co-op, Chapman Cultural Center, Chris Williams, Action Printing, The Healing Arts Fund at Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System, Milliken, Fairway Outdoor, The Arts Partnership of Greater Spartanburg, and Wheresville Productions. This program is supported in part by The Arts Partnership of Greater Spartanburg, its donors, the County and City of Spartanburg, and the South Carolina Arts Commission, which receives support from the National Endowment for the Arts and the John and Susan Bennett Memorial Arts Fund of the Coastal Community Foundation of South Carolina. Proceeds from this event will be directed to the Hub City Empty Bowls Project Fund, a component fund of The Spartanburg County Foundation established to increase awareness about the issues of hunger and food security, and to raise funds to help local organizations fight hunger. This year's beneficiary organization is TOTAL Ministries.

Home ideas for cozy fall living

(StatePoint) With autumn comes crisp falling leaves, fresh brisk air and pumpkin spice aromas. It's time to prepare your home to spend more time indoors, decorating it with warm, cozy accents to set the tone for the season.

Make your home fall-ready with the following cozy ideas.

1. Freshen Up with Soothing Aromas.

A little "me time" is good for the soul, and sometimes you need to pamper yourself after a long day. Whether the scent is apple cinnamon, pumpkin pie or maple leaf, lighting a candle with your favorite fall fragrance creates a warm and welcoming atmosphere, enhancing your sense of calm.

2. Create a Living Room Sanctuary.

Transform your living room into an at-home getaway by displaying seasonal throw pillows and blankets, and adorning the space with elements from nature, like a vase filled with leaf stems and crab apple branches. Crank up the cozy factor with homemade hot cider and a crackling fireplace.

3. Refresh Interiors with Paint.

Give rooms a refreshing update, add color and create contrast in a space with accent walls. Deep colors like navy blue help create a relaxing retreat. Or, take a cue from the changing leaves and opt for warm colors, like mustard yellow or burnt orange. To ensure a top-notch paint job, use a premium brand painter's tape that will deliver sharp paint lines, like FrogTape. It's the only painter's tape that features patented PaintBlock Technology, which reacts with the water in latex paint and instantly gels to form a micro-barrier that seals the edges of the tape to help prevent paint bleed.

4. Innovate with Multi-Functional Appeal.

Since you'll be spending more time inside, transform an empty space like a basement or attic into a useful area for the entire family. With a little imagination and a few tools, you can create a vibrant and playful craft room, as did FrogTape Paintover Challenge winner KariAnne Wood from the blog "Thistlewood Farms." Wood transformed an unused upstairs space in her children to craft, study and hang out with friends. An exciting, multi-functional space is a great way to avoid cabin fever in the months ahead.

5. Give Guests a Warm Greeting.

Celebrity designer Taniya Nayak correctly predicted home design elements that incorporate typographic elements would be a key design trend in 2016. This trend is all about setting the tone for a space with inspirational quotes, personalization and warm greetings. Welcome guests by playing up the autumnal theme with phrases like, "Hello Fall" or "Give Thanks" on decorative wooden planks or burlap-textured fabric. Consider using various font types and sizes to achieve a different feel for each block of text.

6. Deck Out Curb Appeal

Nothing sets a good impression like an attractive entry way and front door. Greet guests with a festive hello by decking out the porch with pumpkins and planting seasonal floral arrangements along the pathway, or creating a fall-inspired wreath to hang on the door. You can even collect a handful of colorful leaves outside to string together and post along your porch fence for extra curb appeal.

For more seasonal inspiration, visit frogtape.com.

Get started on your projects now, so you can kick-back, relax and fully enjoy all that the season has to offer.
