Michelin donates $30,000 to United Way

Michelin has donated $30,000 to the United Way of the Piedmont this year to support outstanding programs in schools throughout North America. Each participating state evaluates local school applications and selects one high school to receive the award. The $30,000 is intended to be temporarily dedicated to the school's Literacy Program.

Boiling Springs

Boiling Springs Elementary School

Boiling Springs, South Carolina (FOX Carolina) — Several Members of the BSES Team, including Principal Michelle Kimbrell, were present at the school to present the award to the Spartanburg Philharmonic Youth Orchestra.

Boiling Springs Elementary School has been named a South Carolina Exemplary Reading School.

In Spartanburg County, 42% of households headed by single mothers are below the Federal Poverty Level, with a median income of $24,000. The Financial Resource Task Force helps to decrease these statistics. Although public assistance is intended to be temporary, families often find themselves relying on these resources just to make ends meet. The Cliff Program describes the pre-existing situation these families find themselves in when they rely on public assistance. The objective is not make up for the deficit, but rather to prevent future financial instability. By doing so, they are able to interact with families in a supportive, non-judgmental way.

Boiling Springs Elementary School's Literacy Program, led by Kimbrell, has been recognized with this honor. Kimbrell says, "We are honored to be recognized as an Exemplary Reading School," Kimbrell said. "This award is a difficult task. It does a very thorough review of the school's Literacy Program," Oliver said. "We are proud of BSES and the work they have done to receive this award."
