Wofford recommended in Princeton Review's 'Best Value Colleges'

Wofford College again has been included among the nation's best colleges for students receiving a superb education with great career preparation at an affordable price, according to The Princeton Review.

The education services company profiles Wofford in the just-published 2019 edition of its annual guide, "The Best Value Colleges: 200 Schools with Exceptional ROI for Your Tuition Investment."

Wofford consistently is named in other national college guides and publications as being a best value in higher education, including The New York Times, which has ranked the college as the top South Carolina institution that is doing the most for low-income students.

The guide notes that at Wofford, more than 90 percent of the student body receives some form of financial assistance. Wofford awards more than $55 million in scholarships and grants.

The publication also ranked Wofford #25 "Best Alumni Network" colleges of the 200 institutions included in the guide. The ranking is based on the student rankings of alumni activity and visibility on campus.

Spartanburg artist exhibits architectural photography at Co-op

Communications professional and artist Thomas Koenig will present the architectural photography exhibit "Lines and Structures" at West Main Artists Co-op through March 2.

The exhibit is constructed around architectural photography and how lines shape the skylines of cities and define structures.

The exhibit will be open for free public viewing Tuesday - Saturday, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. The free and public reception will be Thursday, Feb. 21, 5 - 9 p.m. during the city monthly ArtWalk. It will be one of three exhibits in February.

West Main Artists Co-op is one of the leading arts agencies in Spartanburg. It is a nonprofit and membership-based organizations that is located in a converted church on Main Street. It houses several working studios, galleries, a gift shop, a printery, and a pottery studio. Its collection of for-sale and locally made art is the largest in the city and county. For more information, please visit online: WestMainArtists.org

SCBIO announces 2019 Executive Committee for State's Life Sciences Organization Board of Directors

SCBIO has announced its 2019 Executive Committee following formal confirmation at the life science organization's December 2018 meeting in Columbia. Nephron Pharmaceuticals Corporation CEO Lou Kennedy will serve a second term as SCBIO's 2019 Board Chair.

Ms. Kennedy joined Nephron Pharmaceuticals in 2001, and assumed the position of President and CEO in 2007. She has held a variety of marketing and operational roles during her career and has helped Nephron Pharmaceuticals grow by more than 300% and increased shipped product to one billion doses each of the last seven years. Nephron constructed a state of the art manufacturing facility in West Columbia, South Carolina and, with her husband Bill, helped establish the Kennedy Pharmacy Innovation Center in conjunction with the USC School of Pharmacy. The organization was honored as an inaugural winner of the South Carolina Life Sciences Pinnacle Award for Organizational Contribution to the industry in October, 2018.

Joining Ms. Kennedy on the SCBIO Executive Committee will be Stephanie Yarbrough, Partner with Womble Bond Dickinson, LLP as Vice Chair; Michael Rusnak, Executive Director of the Medical University of South Carolina Research Foundation as Treasurer; and Josh Ridley, Global Business Development Director of ZEUS as Secretary.

The Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce's 'Caffeinated Conversations' January event was highlighted by the first designs of the new Spartanburg County Courthouse.

New Spartanburg County Courthouse designs featured at 'Caffeinated Conversations'

A penny doesn't seem like much. You may have passed a penny on the ground and not bothered to pick it up. But enough pennies can be significant. In Spartanburg County, pennies are leading to the county's largest-ever public investment.

Voters across Spartanburg County in 2017 approved a six-year penny sales tax to fund a new, $152 million judicial center with 85 of 93 total precincts supporting the plan. At January's Caffeinated Conversations, Spartanburg County Administrator Cole Alverson shared the first designs of the 330,000-square-foot, six-story federal-style building.

"I think people believed in the projects, I think people believed they were worthwhile," said Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Allen Smith said. "I think people believed in the plan City Council and County Council so clearly articulated, which is why they voted for it."

An update on the sales tax was also shared with projections coming in ahead of schedule.

"We're at least $1 million ahead in collections in the first quarter," Alverson said. "That's a great spot for us to be."

The new courthouse will be bigger, safer and more thoughtfully laid out for everyone who has to go through the space. The current courthouse presents some security issues, as judges, jurors, lawyers and those charged with crimes all intermingle in common areas because of a lack of open space available in the building.

"We've flat outgrown the Courthouse," Alverson said.

Along with the new courthouse, plans call for a parking area on Library Street just across from the current building.

The new courthouse will have more than a dozen courtrooms and space for Clerk of Court functions, Sheriff's Office court security and holding, Solicitors Office employees, Public Defenders,

Design renderings for the new Spartanburg County Courthouse

Probation and Parole staff and Juvenile Justice officials, among others.

Alverson provided a floor-by-floor look at how the new space would be laid out, from courtrooms to office space for solicitors, the new facility would give the county's judicial officials more space to work and a much more modern, safer space to do it in.

"This building doesn't just have a use of 35 or maybe 40 years, it has a life of 75 or maybe 100 years," Alverson said.

The investment is likely to jump beyond just the Courthouse building, though. The new facility and the facelift it would give the corner of Magnolia and St. John streets is likely to spur other investment, further catapulting Downtown Spartanburg into the future.

Smith brought up the history of Greer's City Hall, built downtown at a cost of more than $20 million. That investment brought increased private investment to Downtown Greer, leading to new businesses and a revitalized downtown area. The penny sales tax would lead to more than $220 million in Downtown Spartanburg, which will revitalize an entire city block and lead to even more private investment funneling into downtown.

The financing of the project has been pay-as-it-goes, meaning as penny sales tax revenues come in, that money is allocated to projects related to the courthouse and other facilities.

"Spartanburg's citizens will not be taking on mountains of debt and paying millions of dollars in interest," Smith said.

The penny was so crucial for Spartanburg County's future that not only did County and City council work closely together, but the heads of the Spartanburg County Republican Party, the Spartanburg County Democratic Party and the Spartanburg Tea Party all announced their support of the plan before the Nov. 2017.

That kind of collaboration is a signature of Spartanburg, and has laid the groundwork for a major piece of Spartanburg's future.

"This campaign was built on collaboration from the very beginning. City Council, County Council really set that tone that it won't work if City and County didn't come together to make this possible," Smith said. "We've said that to other communities. It can't work if you don't have that collaboration from the beginning."

Are you ready to help a friend?

From the American Counseling Association

Humans beings are just naturally social creatures, some of us more so than others. Most of us enjoy our interactions with others, sharing thoughts and happenings and learning from our friends.

While many of the relationships we have are fairly casual, there are other "close" associations that matter because they're with people we truly care about. These might be work associates, neighbors, relatives or a spouse or relationship partner. They're relationships we value, but are also relationships that can pose problems when we see something wrong.

Regardless of how much we think of, or care about, someone close to us, there may be times when we find something troubling or disturbing about that person. At such times we may agonize over whether we should share our opinion or observations, realizing that doing so might jeopardize the relationship. It can be a difficult decision to make even when the person in question is a spouse or other close relative.

While we all want to avoid losing a close friend, we also want to be responsible and to offer the help we think is needed. There's no foolproof way to pass on our concerns but there are ways to approach delicate subjects that minimize the risk of losing a friend. One way is to use what's sometimes called a "caring confrontation" or a "one-two" approach.

This begins by having the conversation in a private place and just between the two of you. Part one is simply describing in an objective, non-judgmental way what you have observed. You might use positive statements like, "You don't seem as happy lately. Am I right?," rather than saying, "You sure are depressed these days."

Part "two" of this approach is to question whether your friend feels your observation is accurate. Is what you stated representative of things not going well? If your friend agrees that there's something wrong, the next step is to offer an invitation to discuss it.

The idea is not to position yourself as an authority trying to "fix" the issue. Sometimes simply giving someone an opportunity to discuss what's wrong can be very helpful. If you think a professional could help, you might make that observation in a positive way.

The point is not to be confrontational, but rather to give your friend the support and encouragement needed to find help and return to a more happy, positive life.

(StatePoint) Flowers and chocolates are always fun to give and receive on Valentine's Day, but if you are looking to shake things up with your gift-giving, there are plenty of ways to tell someone you love them.

Here are unique gift ideas to really wow that special someone.

- Go Somewhere: Whether it's a pair of concert tickets, a long weekend to an exciting destination or dinner on the town, the gift of an experience, particularly one that allows you to spend time together doing something new and different, can be both meaningful and memorable.

- Give the Gift of Music: Are you shopping for a musician or someone who would like to learn to play an instrument? Wherever that someone is on his or her musical journey, and no matter your budget, you shouldn't have to compromise on quality to make Valentine's Day special.

New keyboard models, for example, are making it possible to get great sound quality at a modest price. One example is the CT-X700, which comes equipped with tools for learning to play songs, and faithfully reproduces the sound of acoustic instruments such as guitars, drums, basses, brass, wind instruments, string ensembles and more. Its extensive library of 600 tones and 195 rhythms, allows musicians to create their own masterpieces and is nice for budding and seasoned musicians alike.

- Cook Together: Beat the crowds and surge pricing -- make a romantic playlist, plan a delicious menu and select a great bottle of wine or other beverage of choice for a fine dining Valentine's Day experience in your own

- Upgrade Home Technology: Instantaneously upgrade his or her home theater or gaming system with a projector. Look for a model that offers instant on and off functionality so there's no down time before getting started. The LampFree XJ-F210WN from Casio, a mercury-free model, has a high power 16-watt speaker and a long operating life, making it a good choice for serious movie enthusiasts, gear heads and gamers who prefer a low maintenance option.

- Personalize It: Use a photo of a beloved pet, the lyrics of a favorite song or a picture of the two of you to personalize a special gift. From jigsaw puzzles to throw blankets to tumblers and cutting boards, you can personalize just about anything these days with photos, monograms, sayings and more.

This Valentine's Day, get creative with your gift-giving. Select items that support your recipient's hobbies and offer you an opportunity to spend time together.

AAA Carolinas experiences spike in calls during cold front

Charlotte, N.C. – Emergency Roadside Service calls have been through the roof for AAA Carolinas. The arctic blast brought freezing temperatures recently resulting in car issues – mostly battery – for motorists across both states.

“Over the past month, we averaged around 2,500 calls a day – that’s what a typical day looks like for our responders,” said Jody Smith, Automotive Services and ERS Manager. “However, in the last 24 hours, we had nearly 3,300 calls with a very high percentage of those being dead batteries.”

At a comparatively mild 32 degrees, a car’s battery is 35 percent weaker than at warmer temperatures. At zero degrees, a car’s battery loses approximately 60 percent of its strength. As the air outside cools, the oil in the car thickens making it harder to turn the engine over.

“The freezing temperatures coupled with vehicles that have been sitting idle for days over the weekend resulted in many motorists waking up to dead batteries,” said Tiffany Wright, AAA Carolinas spokesperson. “We expect the call volume to increase over the next couple of days as Carolinians who were off for Martin Luther King Jr. Day and a teacher work day look to start their cars for the first time this week.”

AAA Carolinas recommends the following tips to motorists for battery maintenance:

Get it checked. Have the battery and electrical system inspected by a trusted mechanic prior to extreme temperatures. This will prevent you from any surprises before you start your day. For a link to AAA Car Care Centers click here: <https://carolinas.aaa.com/automotive/carcare/>

Get it tested. Every six months is a good guideline for how often you should have your battery tested, especially if it’s more than a few years old. This ensures that its available starting power stays at appropriate levels.

Switch it off. Not the battery, of course, but the lights, heater and wipers. If you switch your engine off but leave one of these items on, there will be an unnecessary drain on your battery.

Practice moderation. Love your heated seats and heated screens? Enjoy them, but not for longer than you have to. They use a lot of battery power. Also, keep in mind that phone chargers and other electronic devices may drain the battery if left connected.

Park in the garage. If you have the option, use it.

AAA also offers mobile battery service for AAA Members to replace their battery, whether they’re on the side of the road or in their driveway.

AAA Carolinas also recommends that motorists:

Check the tires - They should always be inflated to their specified poundage and have enough tread to handle all road conditions. To check tire tread, look for “wear bars” that periodically run across the hollow of each tread. If the tread has been worn down to the same height as the wear bar, it’s time for new tires.

Check the windshield wipers, fluid and defroster - Driving with a wet, snow- or ice-covered windshield invites a crash. Make sure wipers and the defroster are in good working order.

Verify that windshield washer fluid reservoirs are filled with no-freeze washer fluid.

Check the engine coolant system - Mix the cooling system antifreeze with an equal portion of water for maximum protection. Have a repair facility check the level of protection with a hydrometer.

Pack an emergency car kit - Motorists should be prepared in case they are stranded. A winter emergency car kit should contain a flashlight with extra batteries, jumper cables, general first aid kit, tire chains, blanket, extra set of clothes, non-clumping kitty litter for traction, flares or reflective triangles, cell phone with extra batteries, gallon jug of water, non-perishable food items, window washer solvent, ice scraper, snow brush and shovel.

Complaint

Plaintiff, by and through his undersigned counsel of record, will prove into this honorable Court the following:

GENERAL ALLEGATIONS

1. Plaintiff is a citizen and resident of Spartanburg County, South Carolina.
2. Defendant is, upon information and belief, a citizen and resident of Spartanburg County, South Carolina.
3. The collision giving rise to this lawsuit occurred in Spartanburg County, South Carolina.

4. This Honorable Court has jurisdiction over the parties and over the subject matter of this action. Venue is proper in this Court.

5. On or about August 9, 2016, Plaintiff Marvin Edward Rogers (hereinafter, "Plaintiff"), was driving his 2002 Saturn southbound on Highway 56 in Spartanburg County, South Carolina. Defendant Lyda Mae Lipscomb was driving a 2003 Chevrolet van owned by Johnny Murphy. Defendant Lipscomb pulled out from a private drive onto Highway 52 directly into Plaintiff's lane of travel.

6. Defendant Lipscomb failed to yield the right of way to Plaintiff.

7. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant Lipscomb's failure to yield the right of way, Plaintiff collided with Lipscomb.

8. As a direct and proximate result of the collision, Plaintiff suffered injuries and damages as set forth hereinbelow.

FOR A FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION AS TO DEFENDANT (NEGLIGENCE)

9. The foregoing allegations contained in this Complaint are incorporated by reference herein as fully as if restated verbatim.

10. Defendant was negligent, grossly negligent, reckless, willful and wanton in the following particulars, to wit:

(a) in failing to keep a proper lookout;
(b) in failing to keep the vehicle under proper control so as to avoid the collisions;
(c) in driving too fast for conditions then and there existing;
(d) in failing to safely and properly apply brakes so as to stop the vehicle and avoid the collisions;

(e) in generally failing to exercise the degree of care and caution that a reasonably prudent person would have exercised under the circumstances then and there existing; and

(f) in violating the statute or by or common laws regarding the operation of motor vehicles within the State of South Carolina.

11. As a direct and proximate result of the aforementioned acts of negligence, gross negligence, recklessness, willfulness, and wantonness on behalf of Defendant, Plaintiff suffered injuries to his person that required expensive medical care and treatment.

12. As a further direct and proximate result of the aforementioned acts and/or omissions of Defendant, Plaintiff suffered physical and mental pain and suffered the loss of enjoyment of life.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays for judgment against Defendant for actual and punitive damages, for the costs of this action, and for such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

S.C. joins in $575 million settlement with Wells Fargo

Columbia - Attorney General Alan Wilson recently announced that Wells Fargo Bank N.A. will pay $575 million to resolve claims that the bank violated state consumer protection laws by (1) opening millions of unauthorized accounts and enrolling customers into online banking services without their knowledge or consent, (2) improperly referring customers for enrollment in third-party renters and life insurance policies, (3) improperly charging auto loan customers for force-placed and unnecessary collateral protection insurance, (4) failing to ensure that customers received refunds of unearned premiums on certain optional auto finance products, and (5) incorrectly charging customers for mortgage rate lock extension fees.

“Today’s settlement sends a message loud and clear that South Carolina’s consumer protection laws must be obeyed,” Attorney General Alan Wilson said. “Hard working families who must make every dollar count can ill afford such alleged deceptive and unfair practices by their bank.”

Through this settlement with 50 states and the District of Columbia, Wells Fargo will also create a consumer redress review program through which consumers who have not been made whole through other restitution programs already in place can seek review of their inquiry or complaint by a bank escalation team for possible relief. To date, this settlement represents the most significant engagement involving a national bank by state attorneys general acting without a federal law enforcement partner.

Wells Fargo has identified more than 3.5 million accounts where customer accounts were opened, funds were transferred, credit card applications were filed, and debit cards were issued without the customers’ knowledge or consent. The bank has also identified 528,000 online bill pay enrollments nationwide that may have resulted from improper sales practices at the bank. In addition, Wells Fargo improperly submitted more than 6,500 renters insurance and/or simplified term life insurance policy applications and payments from customer accounts without the customers’ knowledge or consent.

The states alleged that Wells Fargo imposed aggressive and unrealistic sales goals on bank employees and implemented an incentive compensation program where employees could qualify for credit by selling certain products to customers. The states further alleged that the bank’s sales goals and the incentive compensation program created an impetus for employees to engage in improper sales practices in order to satisfy such sales goals and earn financial rewards. Those sales goals became increasingly harder to achieve over time, the states alleged, and employees who failed to meet them faced potential termination and career-hindering criticism from their supervisors.

The states also alleged that Wells Fargo improperly charged premiums, interest, and fees for force-placed collateral protection insurance to more than two million auto financing customers, despite evidence that the customers’ regular auto insurance policy was in effect, and despite numerous customer complaints about such unnecessary placements. (Many of those customers may not have suffered financial harm, however, because the policies were canceled before the customers paid the charges). Wells Fargo has agreed to provide remediation of more than $385 million to approximately 850,000 auto finance customers. The remediation will include payments to over 51,000 customers whose cars were repossessed. The CFPB and OCC are working to ensure that the auto finance customers are fully remediated by Wells Fargo.

Additionally, the states alleged that Wells Fargo failed to ensure that customers received proper refunds of unearned portions of optional Guaranteed Asset/Auto Protection (GAP) products sold as part of motor vehicle financing agreements. As a result, the bank has agreed to provide refunds totaling more than $37 million to certain auto finance customers.

Finally, the states alleged that Wells Fargo improperly charged residential mortgage loan consumers for rate lock extension fees even when the delay was caused by Wells Fargo, a practice contrary to the bank’s policy. Wells Fargo has identified and contacted affected consumers and has refunded or agreed to refund over $100 million of such fees.

“South Carolina’s consumer protection laws are in place to protect our people who bank in our State and clearly Wells Fargo didn’t comply with our laws,” Attorney General Wilson said. “I’m glad that Wells

Fargo has agreed to this settlement and will take steps to make sure this doesn’t happen again.”

South Carolina’s share of the settlement is $6,788,785.83. The states cannot release state-specific data on violations or the number of consumers affected in an individual state because such information is confidential and may be considered confidential supervisory information pursuant to federal law.

Wells Fargo has previously entered consent orders with federal authorities – including the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) – related to its alleged conduct. Wells Fargo has committed to or already provided restitution to consumers in excess of $600 million through its agreements with the OCC and CFPB as well as through settlement of a related consumer class-action lawsuit and will pay over $1 billion in civil penalties to the federal government. Additionally, under an order from the Federal Reserve, the bank is required to strengthen its corporate governance and controls, and is currently restricted from exceeding its total asset size.

As part of its settlement with the states, Wells Fargo has agreed to implement within 60 days a program through which consumers who believe they were affected by the bank’s conduct, but fell outside the prior restitution programs, can contact Wells Fargo to be reviewed for potential redress. Wells Fargo will create and maintain a website for consumers to use to access the program and will provide periodic reports to the states about ongoing restitution efforts.

More information on the redress review program, including Wells Fargo escalation phone numbers and the Wells Fargo dedicated website address for the program will be available on or before February 26.
