Ricky's Drive-In closed after 62 years of service

Ricky's Drive-In, a fixture in the Spartanburg community for 62 years, has announced that it has closed. The restaurant's last day of service was Thursday, June 19, and revealed that another restaurant will be taking its place.

According to the restaurant's Facebook post, "Thank you so much for supporting us since 1962. You are all a part of our family. It's time for Ricky's to say GOODBYE. Our last day will be Thursday, June 19th. Hopefully, we will get to see many of you before we leave. Another restaurant will be taking over the space. And you'll recognize many of the employees. If you are in need of some chili for the 4th of July, buy it and freeze it. It'll be perfectly fine. Come grab some food before Thursday. And remember, you'll always be a part of the Ricky's family. THANK YOU!!!"

Wade's Restaurant unveils Wade's Jr.

Adapted from information provided by Wade's Restaurant

A cherished Spartanburg culinary institution is taking a step forward. Wade's Restaurant, a James Beard Award-winning beacon of Southern comfort food for nearly eight decades, has announced plans to launch a brand-new concept: Wade's Jr. Set to open in early 2026 on Reidville Road, this next-generation eatery will bring the signature flavors of Wade's to the west side of Spartanburg in a modern, fastcasual format.

From its founding in 1947, Wade's has become synonymous with homestyle Southern cooking fluffy yeast rolls, savory meat-and-three plates, and warm hospitality. Now, with Wade's Jr., the family-owned restaurant aims to meet the needs of today's on-the-go diners while honoring its rich legacy.

and Moore communities — Wade's Jr. will feature counter service, a streamlined "meat and three" menu, and a curbside pickup lane for online orders. Guests can expect the same from-scratch recipes and warm service, in a format built for convenience. And yes — Wade's legendary hand-mixed yeast rolls, baked fresh daily, will still be front and center.

A Family Legacy Evolves

Wade's Jr. represents not just a new restaurant, but a new chapter in the story of one of Spartanburg's most iconic family businesses."Our family and team have been dreaming up the next version of Wade's for years," said Hamp Lindsey, co-owner and son of the founders. "Spartanburg's growth is truly exciting, and we are proud to expand within this vibrant community. Wade's Jr. allows us to reach even more guests, especially those who may not always make it to our east side location." The new location will debut refreshed also branding — including an updated logo and modernized veggie characters inspired by the restaurant's most recognizable icon: the golden yeast roll.

ensuring longtime patrons still enjoy the full experience they've come to love."Continuing our family's legacy of serving great Southern cooking to Spartanburg is an honor we don't take lightly," said Wade Lindsey III, another third-generation owner. "Our commitment to excellence and continuous improvement has been the cornerstone of our success for generations, and we remain dedicated to bringing the best of Southern hospitality to our community."

According to Joey Basso, Chief Operating Officer, the launch of Wade's Jr. is the result of years of planning.

"The right team and the right location have come together at just the right time," Basso said. "The Spartanburg Community College, Winthrop University announce new transfer partnership

Spartanburg Community (SCC) College and Winthrop University have announced a new academic partnership that will help students transition seamlessly from SCC to Winthrop, select their desired major, and move steadily toward graduation. The agreement, which introduces four guided Meta-Majors, will allow students to complete both their associate's and bachelor's degrees efficiently.

"Spartanburg Community College is proud to offer our students opportunities to continue their education at a host of institutions from around the state and beyond," said Stacey Obi, Vice President of Student & Community Advancement at SCC. "These new pathways for students to transfer on to Winthrop University are a result of close collaboration and mark the beginning of a great, new partnership with Winthrop that we look forward to expanding in the future."

The new program centers around Meta-Majors, which groups academic disciplines into career-specific clusters. Each Meta-Major outlines key milestones, course requirements and timelines for completing an associate degree at SCC and transitioning into a bachelor's degree program at Winthrop. Students benefit from personalized advising, early access to transfer tools and a clear "road map" toward degree completion. "We're thrilled about the potential of this partnership, particularly how it will enhance the academic journeys of our transfer students," said Sebastian van Delden, Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs at Winthrop University. "I'm thankful for the teams at both institutions. Their collaboration and shared commitment to student success is a win-win for everyone." The Four Meta-Majors Include:

Bachelor's of Arts from Wofford College, where he played baseball for four years.

Spartanburg Methodist College names Tyler Miller new head baseball coach

By Daniel Kambel for Spartanburg Methodist College

The next chapter of the Spartanburg Methodist College baseball program will be led by Tyler Miller as announced by athletic director Megan Aiello.

Miller has been named the head coach after a nationwide search, following the 33 years of leadership by Tim Wallace. Miller comes to SMC with a lineage of baseball coaches, his grandfather, Clyde amassed 835 victories as a head coach that finished his career at nearby Gardner-Webb and his father, Joe was the head coach at another nearby school, Anderson University for 23 years.

"We are excited to welcome Tyler Miller as the new head baseball coach at Spartanburg Methodist College. With his experience playing and coaching in South Carolina, Tyler kows the history and prestige of our program," said Scott Cochran, president of SMC. "We're conifdent he will provide our players and program a great opportunity for continued success and growth on and off the field."

Around South Carolina S.C. lays plans to rebuild or repair an estimated 900 homes damaged by Hurricane Helene

By: Jessica Holdman for the S.C. Daily Gazette https://scdailvgazette.com/

Anderson — South Carolina plans to rebuild or repair an estimated 900 homes damaged by Hurricane Helene.

A state Office of Resilience plan lays out spending for nearly $200 million in federal and state funding set aside in the wake of the massive storm, which swept across the Southeast last September.

Helene marked the deadliest storm in state history. leading to the deaths of 49 people and bringing tropical storm-force winds and heavy rainfall across most of western and central South Carolina.

To aid in recovery, the Palmetto State will spend more than 80% of the $150 million it received from U.S. Housing and Urban Development on housing.

The lionshare — $110.7 million - will go to repairing and replacing homes, said Disaster Recovery Director Scott Sharpe.

HUD requires the state to spend most, if not all, the federal funds in what it considers the heaviest-hit counties: Greenville, Abbeville, McCormick, Edgefield and Orangeburg.

No more than 20% is allowed to go to residents of Aiken, Saluda, Greenwood. Laurens. Union. Spartanburg, Cherokee, Anderson, Oconnee and Pickens.

Legislators also approved $40 million in the upcoming budget to replenish one of the state's own disaster recovery funds, a portion of which the Resilience Office will use to rebuild homes in impacted counties not eligible for federal dollars. The state is focusing rebuilding efforts on those families with the greatest financial need, starting with families earning just 30% of the area median income and further prioritizing those with children and elderly or disabled family members, Sharpe said. In Greenville County, that's less than $29,000 for a family of four. In Orangeburg County, it's an income less than $20,400, according to HUD figures. The state will spend up to $225,000 to rebuild a home and up to $75,000 to make repairs not covered by insurance or other financial aid, Sharpe said.

The goal is to make those rebuilt homes more storm resistant. They'll have reinforced roofs and windows resistant to hurricane-force winds. The state also will elevate those in flood plains, Sharpe said.

When it comes to mobile homes, if the homeowner owns the land, the state will replace them with standard, single family homes. If the homeowner leases the lot their mobile home sits on. the state will replace it with a new mobile home.

approval, the Resilience Office will begin taking applications for federal aid, likely in late August.

The state dollars can be spent sooner, Sharpe said. State recovery officials, known as disaster case managers, have already been gathering a list of eligible homeowners and Sharpe hopes to begin rebuilds on as many as 200 homes in the next few weeks.

Beyond repairs, the state is setting aside $13 million to buy out repeatedly flooded homes.

And $7.5 million will go to repair rental properties for landlords who agree to able level as set by HUD for at least five years. Sharpe said Helene heavily impacted renters. Tenants aid applications filed with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Finally, the state is turning to volunteer organizations to help with repairs and stretch the recovery dollars further. Those volunteer groups are often nonprofits that pay for repairs through their own fundraising. They're also eligible for money from the One SC Fund.

The fund was created in 2015 with the backing of then-Gov. Nikki Haley to respond to historic flooding after Hurricane Joaquin stalled off the coast and dumped up to 2 feet of rain on parts of South Carolina. The Cen-tral Carolina Community Foundation, which manages the fund, reactivated it in response to Hurricane Matthew in 2016, Hurri-cane Florence in 2018, the COVID pandemic, and most recently, Hurricane Helene.

The fund raised more than $5 million for recovery efforts following the September storm.
