Spartanburg's Karen Floyd honored at Cannes for Impact in Cinematic Storytelling

Adapted from information provided by OneSpartanburg, Inc.

Karen Floyd, founder of ELYSIAN magazine, publisher, and filmmaker, was honored with the prestigious Âme de lumière (Soul of Light) Impact in Cinema award at the Sustainable Responsibility Gala during the 78th Cannes Film Festival. The award recognizes visionaries using cinematic storytelling to drive humanitarian progress and underscores Floyd's pioneering work in philanthropic and socially conscious filmmaking.

Floyd's recognition shines a global spotlight on her documentary work, particularly CatWalk FurBaby 2, a behind-thescenes film chronicling a South Carolina-based team as they launch a unique fashion event during New York Fashion Week. The film celebrates the missions of 21 charities across the United States, with customized edits produced to support each organization's individual fundraising efforts.

"Being recognized at Cannes, among the world's most influential cinematic voices, is profoundly humbling," Floyd said. "ELYSIAN was founded to connect and uplift extraordinary women around the globe through storytelling and purpose. This award reaffirms that when passion meets platform, there are no limits to the impact we can make."

technology.

"While the Lowcountry has long been a soughtafter filming location, CatWalk FurBaby showcased the vibrancy and potential of South Carolina's Upstate region," said Matt Storm, director of the South Carolina Film Commission. "Karen's creative vision and bold approach are helping shape the state's emerging film identity. Floyd's contributions to social impact filmmaking were also highlighted during Cannes Doc Day, where the trailer for Ukraine: For the Children was screened at the Palais des Festivals et des Congrès. The film, executive produced by Floyd, provides an unfiltered, woman's-eye view of the devastation wrought by war in Ukraine. Inspired by a mural in Kyiv portraying a soldier, a mother, and a child as layers of protection, the documentary captures the vulnerability and resilience of children amid conflict. Bedford Falls gifts $2 million to USC Upstate USC Upstate has received a transformational $2 million gift from the Bedford Falls Foundation-DAF to launch the Joanne and William Conway Nursing Scholarship Fund. The fund will provide 108 scholarships annually over the next four years, totaling 432 awards and creating significant new opportunities for students pursuing careers in nursing.

Beginning in fall 2025, the fund will provide $2,500 scholarships to 48 lowerdivision nursing majors and $5,000 scholarships to 60 upper-division nursing majors each year. Eligible students must be U.S. citizens, South Carolina residents, maintain a cumulative GPA of 2.7 or higher, and commit to at least three hours of peer mentoring or community service per semester.

"This is a monumental gift that will change the lives of so many of our students," said Dr. Shirleatha Dunlap, dean and professor/Mary Black Endowed Chair for Nursing at USC Upstate. "These funds will be transformative in supporting student success-allowing students to decrease work hours, reduce debt burdens, and focus more intently on their studies. It creates a smoother pathway toward degree completion." In alignment with the Mary Black College of Nursing's strategic goals, scholarship recipients will engage in peer mentoring and meaningful servicelearning experiences to further enhance student support and community impact. In addition to scholarships, the gift will fund two new student support initiatives: The Joanne Barkett Conway Dean's Emergency Fund, which will provide urgent financial assistance for prelicensure nursing students facing unexpected hardship. The Student Success Initiative Fund, which will offer academic and social support resources such as tutoring services, study skills workshops, faculty training, and continued funding for an upper-division academic advisor position. "We are honored to partner with the University of South Carolina Upstate to invest in the future of nursing," said Bill Conway Jr., co-founder and trustee of the Bedford Falls Foundation. "By reducing the financial barriers to a nursing education at USC Upstate, together we can address the critical nursing workforce shortage in the state of South Carolina." Applications for the scholarships will be available soon. USC Upstate encourages eligible students to apply and take advantage of this lifechanging opportunity. The Bedford Falls Foundation gift was awarded through the USC Upstate Foundation, the nonprofit organization that receives and administers private donations on behalf of the University.

Mohammed Moustahwid of Woodruff has been named to the Chadron State College President's List for the Spring 2025 semester. To qualify, students must complete at least 12 credit hours, be pursuing their first bachelor's degree, earn a cumulative grade-point average of 4.0, and have no incomplete grades. City and state listings reflect students' home addresses as provided to the college.

Local students named to Carson-Newman University Dean's List for spring semester

Jefferson City, TN - The following students from Spartanburg County were named to Carson-Newman University's Dean's List for the Spring 2025 Semester.

The Flying Biscuit Café expands to Spartanburg

The Southern breakfast institution, Flying Biscuit Café, is bringing its signature charm and all-day brunch to downtown Spartanburg. The restaurant's newest location - opening Monday, June 9 - marks the brand's 39th nationwide and fifth in South Carolina.

The Spartanburg café will be owned and operated by local entrepreneur Chris Atchison, a Spartanburg native with more than 20 years of experience in the restaurant and hospitality industry. Known for launching successful bar and grill concepts and coffee shops throughout the region, Atchison brings deep community roots and a passion for service to this latest venture.

For over 30 years, the Flying Biscuit Café has reimagined the Southern breakfast experience with bold, inventive twists on traditional comfort food. Known for its cheerful atmosphere and commitment to fresh ingredients, the café serves all-day brunch seven days a week, featuring favorites like Stuffed French Toast, the Piedmont Omelet, and a variety of vegan and gluten-free options. Guests can also enjoy brunch cocktails, including mimosas and the signature "Stage 5 Clinger" Bloody Mary.

To celebrate its grand opening, Flying Biscuit Spartanburg will host a lineup of special promotions for the community:

Around South Carolina New law requires seatbelts for children riding in golf carts on South Carolina roads

By: Jessica Holdman for the South Carolina Daily Gazette

A new state law lets cities set their own rules for where and when golf carts can be driven on South Carolina's roadways but requires a new rule for passengers: Children under 12 must buckle up.

As initially proposed, the bill authorized any county to pass an ordinance allowing golf carts with headlights and rear lights to be driven at night. The purpose was to expand on permission that a 2016 law gave only to certain barrier islands.

But the Senate took it further — letting municipalities "stipulate the hours, methods, and locations" for daylight golf cart driving too and adding statewide the safety rule for children.

"I unfortunately have had the misfortune of seeing too many kids maimed and killed on golf carts," said Senate Minority Leader Brad Hutto. "It's awful."

The Orangeburg Democrat works as an attorney and has handled such cases as part of his law practice.

"When you see golf carts go by and there are kids sitting on the back of these golf carts that are not in a seat belt, you know good and well if they slam on the brakes those kids going right off the back and maybe right in front of the car that's following them," Hutto said during floor debate in the Senate earlier this month.

Sen. Ronnie Cromer

agreed, telling his fellow senators he had seatbelts installed in his wife's custom-built golf cart.

"I have seen kids at the beach that are riding on the back of those carts. How the parents were holding them in, I don't know," the Prosperity Republican said. "So I think that's a pretty good idea to force people to put seat belts on."

The seat belt rule came up as part of a larger debate about how South Carolina handles the recreational carts, which can be driven during daylight hours with a permit on any public road where the speed limit is 35 mph or less.

Drivers must be at least 16 years old and have a driver's license.

State law previously limited their usage to within 4 miles of the address where they're registered or within 4 miles of a gated community's entrance. However, local governments could reduce the allowed routes to 2 miles.

The new law leaves that distance entirely up to local governments. The 4mile rule stays intact for anywhere without its own ordinance.

"In the past, we've created exceptions ... and it became sort of this patchwork quilt of golf cart regulations," said Sen. Greg Hembree.

Rather than expand on exceptions in state law, the Little River Republican instead urged legislators to overhaul the law by setting minimum standards but also giving all local governments the ability to enact tougher restrictions that go beyond what's in state law.

"Every community is a little different," he said. "Every community has its own unique dangers or areas that are safer. And it's more appropriate for that local government to make those decisions."

For example, towns might have certain areas where they don't want to allow golf carts to be used at all, Hembree said.

"And quite frankly, under this bill, a local government could regulate them out of existence in a community," he said.

The legislation passed both the House and Senate with almost no opposition. Gov. Henry McMaster signed it into law recently. It took effect immediately.
