Inman student named a National Merit Semifinalist

Hartsville - An Inman student enrolled at the South Carolina Governor's School for Science & Mathematics (GSSM) is among the 16,000 semifinalists named in the 64th annual National Merit Scholarship Program.

Lillian Slaughter, child of Mrs. Shannon Slaughter and Mr. John Slaughter of Inman, was named a semifinalist.

More than 1.6 million juniors in 22,000 high schools entered the 2019 National Merit Scholarship Program by taking the 2017 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT®). The nationwide pool of Semifinalists, representing less than one percent of U.S. high school seniors, includes the highest-scoring entrants in each state. A student becomes a Finalist based on academic record, high school principal endorsement, and SAT scores.

Approximately 90 percent of Semifinalists are expected to become Finalists, and approximately half of the Finalists will be awarded scholarships. Awards will be announced between April and July 2019.

Spartanburg School District Three announces September's Kiwanis Terrific Kids of the Month

The following Spartanburg School District Three elementary school students have been recognized as Terrific Kids for the month of September:

Cannons Elementary: Nathan Waddell, Jaydan Gonzalez, Junior Manilla, Ahkevia Harris, Abigail Moore-Bauer, Amalu Degraffinreid, CJ Fox, Blake Vance, Mya Herrejon, MC Jones, Dessa Falls, Graysen Gregory, Noah Young and Jermey Stewart.

Clifdale Elementary: Daisy Scruggs, Kynlee Fortner, Abigail Kyle, Kinley Willis, Gavin Lee, Aubrey Cowart, Lily Duckett, Carrie Wampler, Maxi Paniagua, Will McGuane, Shelby Hughes, Misael Paniagua, Roman Reynosa, Jacob Blackwell, Gabriella Lewis and Alivia Lewis.

Cowpens Elementary: Bryce Allen, Rowan Lake, Blake Shackelford, Lydia Grace Lyda, Rylan Roberts, Martin Garza, Jake Patton, Karen Martinez-Lopez, Vanessa Green, Lillie Pinkard, Brett Bridges, Clara Moore, Jace Littlejohn, Cali Directo, Carson Taylor, Chris Scruggs, and Julie Gadd.

Pacolet Elementary: Stephen Barker, Wayne Riddle, Eylssa Berry, Zayden Shippy, Ju'el Reeder, Jaxx Robinson, Jacob Smith, Hali Barker, Alejandro Contreras, Lily Barker, MaKayla Bair, Karlie Cochran, Justyce Brannon, Emily Hammitt, Allie Martin, Josiah Stewart, Amber Davis, Akira Smith, Jayla Fullenwinder, Abby Price, and Sara Marie Hartell.

Terrific Kids is a student recognition program, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Spartanburg that promotes character development, self-esteem, and perseverance. TERRIFIC is an acronym meaning: Thoughtful Enthusiastic Respectful Responsible Inclusive Friendly Inquisitive Capable.

S.C. Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism offering signage for tourism businesses

The S.C. Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism is offering directional signage to tourism-related businesses in the highway right-of-way.

The legislature recently passed a law allowing private businesses to install such signage. Participating businesses must be located in an unincorporated area or in a town of less than 5,000 people.

Signs cost $400 and an annual participation fee of $100 to the S.C. Department of Transportation. Businesses must apply by Oct. 30 to participate.

The Spartanburg Philharmonic's Celebration Week

On Saturday, September 29, over one-thousand seats were sold in Twichell Auditorium as the Spartanburg Philharmonic opened its 2018-2019 season. The energy and excitement over the orchestra's 90th Season Celebration and new Maestro radiated in the hall. This was Maestro Stefan Sanders's first concert since he was named winner of Project Maestro in March of this year. Sanders and his wife, professional harpist Kela Walton, moved to Spartanburg in August and have been proud "Spartanburgers" since.

The 90th Season Celebration week began on Tuesday. Stefan and Kela dined with more than 65 community members at the sold-out event, "A Night in Paris," a French-themed sit-down dinner sponsored by Spartanburg Marriott. During the event, concertmaster Joanna Mulfinger graced the audience with beautiful French music on violin. On Wednesday morning, the 10th Music Trail sign was unveiled in Downtown Spartanburg with Chris Jennings, Executive Vice President of the Convention of Visitors Bureau, Betsy Teter, Editor and Director of Development at the Hub City Writers Project and Mayor Junie White in attendance.

Thursday night, rehearsals began for Saturday's performance. General Manager and Composer in Residence, Peter B. Kay was excited to have students from Converse College, Furman University and University of Georgia among the seventy-two musicians on stage. "It was fun to have students and local talents such as Omar Wingo (2nd Saxophone), Sara Nichols (Double Bass), Tom Wright (Principle Saxophone) and others join us for the first time on stage. The program also called for a huge assortment of instruments which is always fascinating to hear in harmony." These instruments included a full range of saxophones, an oboe d'amore, taxi horns in the percussion section and a piccolo trumpet.

On Friday afternoon, Maestro Sanders addressed members of the Piedmont Club during their Lunch and Learn event. General Manager of the Piedmont Club and board member of the Spartanburg Philharmonic, Peter Grzan, will be hosting this event for members of the Piedmont Club for the whole season. Later, Sanders talked about his journey to programming the 90th Season Celebration and gave tidbits of music history about each piece and its respective composer. Those in attendance were able to ask questions about the music and composers in a relaxed atmosphere. Joining Maestro Sanders at this event was guest soloist, Anton Nel.

Saturday night began with the traditional "Classical Conversations" with Maestro Sanders and Director of the Petrie School of Music, Dr. Chris Vaneman. Scrapbooks that outlined the 90-year history of the Philharmonic were available for viewing in the lobby. Among the historical documents, were programs dating back to the early 1930s, photographs of orchestra members from the Philharmonic's early years and articles written about the organization.

At a little past 7 o'clock, Chair of the Board of Directors, Rachel Deems, along with Executive Director, Kathryn Boucher welcomed the crowd. The orchestra honored Kurt Zimmerli (who celebrated his 90th birthday in May of this year) by playing "Happy Birthday." "It was wonderful listening to over a thousand people singing to Mr. Zimmerli who has been such a faithful patron of the Spartanburg Philharmonic. I sat on his row and was able to see his reaction. I could tell he was so appreciative of the gesture. He even took Nelly's hand into his and squeezed it. It was truly special!" says Director of Marketing for the Philharmonic, Rachel Hansen. Other attendees who were recognized were lifelong board members, Dr. Sidney Fulmer and Dr. Joella Utley, current and past board members of the Spartanburg Philharmonic, and Carolina Sanders, Stefan's mother. Deems also recognized Stefan's wife Kela, who played 2nd Harp.

"It is really fulfilling to see the community join us in their appreciation of some of the finest music South Carolina has to offer. The record turnout for the Philharmonic opening, and the enthusiastic welcome given to Maestro Sanders, delivers notice that there is something remarkable happening in Spartanburg, and people are thrilled to be a part of it. Sanders and the Philharmonic deliver the goods, and people are going to be talking about it for a long time to come," says board member and Treasurer for the Philharmonic, Travis Sutton. He adds, "Sanders balanced delicate grace with strapping gusto in his conductor's arsenal, and the deep, talented orchestra responded in kind, injecting bold vitality into his new musical vision for Spartanburg."

From Leonard Bernstein's "Candide Overture" to Maurice Ravel's "Bolero," every piece was met with resounding applause and appreciation. "This entire event was such a delight to be a part of! The repertoire, the orchestra, the audience, our new conductor--all were wonderfully energetic and animated. And it was especially fun for me, as I got to play not only my oboe but also English horn and oboe d'amore, two instruments that I really enjoy but seldom get to play in an orchestral setting," said Dr. Kelly Vaneman, Associate Principal Oboe and Professor of Oboe and Musicology at Converse College.

"Everything about the concert was sheer perfection. "Rhapsody in Blue" was stunning, and Ravel's "Bolero" still gives me chills when I think about it. I cried when we sang Happy Birthday to Kurt Zimmerli, reflecting on all the generous music lovers that have brought us to this place in time. I'm so privileged to be included on this team," says Karen Parrott, Board member and Chair of the Development Committee.

After the concert, the Maestro, musicians and audience members celebrated with cake and congratulations. Executive Director, Kathryn Boucher said "We are thrilled with the response from the community at all of the events that surrounded our 90th Season Celebration. The concert set a record for opening night attendance and we couldn't be more excited to welcome Stefan to the podium with this enthusiasm."

Join us for our next concert, Heroes and Villains: Music from Hollywood Films on November 10.

Understanding and overcoming road rage

From the American Counseling Association

Today's streets and highways are more crowded than ever. If you're driving almost anywhere these days you're often encountering bad drivers, traffic jams and road construction.

The stress and anger that go along with driving frustrations is a fairly common occurrence, but when they build to the point that you become an aggressive driver yourself, it's a real problem.

"Road rage" is generally described as uncontrolled anger at the actions of another driver. In extreme cases it's more than simply being angry and upset. It can lead to aggressive and violent behavior behind the wheel, including intentionally hitting the car of the driver who has upset you, or getting out of your car to engage in a physical confrontation. In some cases the angry driver will have a weapon and will threaten or harm the other driver.

Clearly any such out of control actions are illegal, dangerous and likely to cause harm to you and those around you. If you have experienced a form of out of control road rage, it is vital that you seek professional assistance. This is a condition that needs anger management help. A professional counselor has a variety of techniques to help someone understand and control such reactions.

For most of us, however, the anger we feel behind the wheel doesn't result in violent behavior but can lead to dangerous driving. You might find yourself cutting off others, tailgating, speeding, flashing your lights or honking your horn. All are signs of aggressive driving and dangerous as they are likely to provoke the other driver. And remember, none of those actions are going to change anything about how that other person drives.

Instead, it's important for you to control your anger. Take a second to remind yourself that what is happening isn't your fault and that it's outside your control. Next, take action to relax yourself. Tune in to something soothing and enjoyable on the radio. Take the time to slowly count to 10. Try concentrating on individual parts of your body and consciously think about relaxing your muscles.

When your anger controls you, then you become less alert in relation to your driving and traffic situations that might occur suddenly. And if anger while driving happens frequently, even if not escalating to road rage, and you can't control it, consider learning about relaxation training or an anger management course.

New $3 million program could help close gap in advanced manufacturing

Paul Alongi, College of Engineering, Computing and Applied Sciences

Greenville - A skills gap that could leave as many as 2 million manufacturing jobs unfilled by 2025 is one of the driving forces behind a new Clemson University program that for the first time matches graduate students with technical college students on an assembly line built for research.

The new program, THINKER, is the first in the nation to bring together graduate students and technical college students in an advanced manufacturing program centered on education and research.

It is backed by $3 million from the National Science Foundation and is aimed at creating well-prepared leaders who can help close the skills gap in advanced manufacturing. By going through the program, those leaders will understand the interaction of machines, people and data, organizers said.

Economic expansion and baby boomer retirements will likely create a need to fill 3.4 million manufacturing jobs in the nation between 2015 and 2025, but only 1.4 million are likely to be adequately filled, according to a study by Deloitte and the The Manufacturing Institute.

It's a crucial issue for South Carolina, where the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis says manufacturing accounts for 17 percent of the economy, which is more than 50 percent higher than the national average.

Clemson is responding with a portfolio of research, education, and partnership programs, including THINKER, that are coming together under the Clemson University Center for Advanced Manufacturing.

THINKER is an acronym for Technology- Human INtegrated Knowledge, Education and Research.

The program will equip students with both technical skills and "soft skills," such as communication and collaboration. The leaders the program aims to create are in high demand and could help attract new businesses to South Carolina, while supplying businesses already in the state with the talent they need to grow.

Laine Mears, the BMW SmartState Chair in Automotive Manufacturing at Clemson, said the THINKER team will be creating a new national model for graduate education.

"We do that by putting students into a manufacturing environment and teaching them how people and technology work together and how new technologies can emerge to support that vision," he said.

The impact could quickly ripple through the broader regional economy. Every job in manufacturing creates another 2.5 jobs in local goods and services, and for every $1 invested, another $1.37 in additional value is created in other sectors, according to the study by Deloitte and The Manufacturing Institute.

Graduate students who enroll in THINKER will lead teams of undergraduate and technical college students in research projects suggested by industry. The idea is to recreate the dynamics that come into play when researchers, engineers and technicians collaborate on projects in actual factories.

The teams will focus their research on connecting human workers and internet-connected machines that are often loaded with sensors and generating massive amounts of data. A wide range of research projects could be involved, such as developing new manufacturing processes or creating wearable devices that give workers feedback to improve quality.

Students will conduct their research at the new Clemson Vehicle Assembly Center, a research assembly line that replicates a real-world car factory. The facility is housed within Greenville Technical College's Center for Manufacturing Innovation.

David Clayton, the executive director of the Center for Manufacturing Innovation, said the collaboration underscores the depth of cooperation between the institutions on an issue crucial to South Carolina's economic well-being.

"This program will accelerate what is already one of the fastest-growing manufacturing industries in the country," he said. "Greenville Technical College students will have a unique opportunity to advance their education in an environment that closely replicates what happens in an advanced-manufacturing setting, giving them an advantage in the job market. Further, our students, who often have experience in manufacturing, will be well positioned to inform graduate students' research."

In addition to research, graduate students in THINKER will be required to take a course on collaboration, and cross-disciplinary technical courses in each of three key areas: manufacturing, data and human integration.

Plans call for 25 master's students and 25 Ph.D. students to complete the program over the five-year grant period. A plan is in place to keep it going after that. While undergraduates and technical college students will be involved, the National Science Foundation funding is reserved for graduate students pursuing degrees in science, technology, engineering and math.

Those students will also have to continue to meet the master's and Ph.D. requirements for their home departments.

What will set them apart at graduation is a special designation showing they have completed the THINKER program in addition to their regular master's or Ph.D. work.

Zoran Filipi, chair of the Department of Automotive

Engineering, said the program will help meet industry's needs while transforming graduate education in advanced manufacturing.

"This is holistic approach to engineering education, combining both technical and soft skills that are in high demand in a modern workplace," he said. "THINKER graduates will understand multi-hierarchical leadership, communication and how to manage the integration of people with new digital manufacturing technologies in a rapidly evolving environment."

The program also presents unique opportunities for advancing education research.

Debi Switzer, co-principal investigator on the grant and chair of the Department of Education and Human Development at Clemson, said her team will research what it takes to empower individuals so that each feels he or she has a voice in a team of diverse educational backgrounds. Switzer was also drawn to the opportunity to make sure students can apply what they learn to any setting.

"Discovering new ways of empowering individuals to have a voice — no matter what the makeup of the team — will add to the literature in every aspect of human endeavor where teams are necessary," she said. "That is a 21st-century skill."

Mark Johnson, the founding director of the Center for Advanced Manufacturing, said the THINKER program will help South Carolina maintain its competitive edge.

"The skills and knowledge that students learn in this program align with industry needs, both today and for the future" said Johnson, who is also the Thomas F. Hash '69 SmartState Endowed Chair in Sustainable Development. "This holistic approach will educate the leaders of tomorrow who will power innovation and economic growth from the start."

Mears is the principal investigator on the grant, which comes through the National Science Foundation's Research Traineeship. Co-principal investigators are: Joshua Summers professor of mechanical engineering; Switzer; Laura Stanley, associate professor of industrial engineering; Amy Apon, chair of the Division of Computer Science in the School of Computing; Nathan McNeese, an assistant professor in the School of Computing; Farbod Akhavan Niaki, research assistant professor of automotive engineering; Kris Frady, assistant professor of education; and Dani Herro, associate professor of education.

A joint statement on the program was issued by Tanju Karanfil, vice president for research, and Jason Osborne, associate provost and dean of the graduate school.

"We are excited that this program will provide new opportunities to recruit the best students and broaden the graduate student pipeline," they said. "This is an excellent opportunity to take Clemson's research enterprise to the next level, while promoting economic development for the state."

Upgrade your kitchen to cook like a professional chef

(StatePoint) Of course, cooking like a chef at home requires talent and practice. But there's no doubt about it -- having the right culinary tools, appliances and prep space is essential, too.

To upgrade your kitchen so that you can cook like a chef, consider the following:

Prep Like a Pro

Save time and energy and get a cleaner cut by maintaining your knives. Properly clean, dry and store knives directly after use and regularly sharpen them. Whether that's on a magnetic strip on the wall or an in-drawer organizer, the best options will allow you to see all your knives at once so you can reach for the correct one. Precision slicing? You may also wish to invest in a mandoline.

Bake a lot? Consider ditching the measuring cups by using a digital scale instead. You'll get faster, more accurate results. And the bonus of less to clean-up.

Cook Like a Pro

When it comes to ensuring that there are no limits to what you can do in the kitchen, it's all about having top-notch appliances. Check out the Pro Series Collection of free-standing ranges from ILVE. Known for their handcrafted Italian appliances, the new series offers chef-quality features such as a removable griddle, high BTU brass burners and a built-in warm drawer to keep cooked food at an ideal temperature for serving. Available in a 36-inch single or unique double oven configuration as well as 40-inch and 48-inch sizes with double ovens, the electric ovens feature multi-function cooking options and included rotisserie accessory. The Pro Series is equipped with features that professional chefs dream of at a price point that the home culinarian can afford. Offered in stainless steel and matte graphite colors, you can get a professional-style cooking experience while maintaining the sleek design of your kitchen.

Move Like a Pro

Do an audit of your current cooking habits, bearing in mind the layout of your kitchen and the organization of go-to ingredients. Are you expending time and energy walking all the way around the kitchen island just to get to the fridge? Are you spending too much time poking around for a particular spice or oil? The optimal flow in your kitchen space will allow for more intuitive food preparation and help you stay light on your feet.

Want to cook like a professional? Update your kitchen accordingly. A few upgrades can help you become a better chef.

Unhappy gut? Some people suffer for years before seeing a doctor

(StatePoint) Abdominal pain? Diarrhea? An estimated 16 million Americans live with a type of irritable bowel syndrome called IBS-D (the D stands for diarrhea), and it affects both men and women almost equally. However, only 30 percent of individuals consult a physician about their symptoms.

poisoning, communication problems between the brain and digestive system, a family history of IBS and other causes."

Treatment options

There is currently no cure, but there are treatments that can help with the symptoms of IBS-D. Lifestyle changes, such as eliminating certain foods and increasing exercise, could help.

"Studies have shown that between 50 and 70 percent of patients failed to respond to either fiber or antispasmodics as a treatment therapy," says Dr. Franklin. "There are different types of prescription treatments for IBS-D. If one isn't working, it's important that patients ask their healthcare professional about trying a different medicine to find what treatment is right for them."

For more information, visit IBSDUpClose.com.

If you're experiencing symptoms of IBS-D, don't be afraid to talk to your doctor about all of them. This is the first step toward helping find a treatment plan and getting relief.

Why is that?

"People who experience symptoms of IBS-D can feel like their symptoms are not severe enough to seek medical attention or that there isn't anything doctors can do to help," says Dr. Howard Franklin, vice president of medical affairs and strategy at Salix Pharmaceuticals. "But doctors want to hear about everything you are feeling so they can determine the underlying cause of your discomfort and help you find a treatment plan that is right for you."

A closer look at IBS-D

Symptoms of IBS-D, which are different in everyone, include stomach pain and cramping, frequent diarrhea, gas, bloating and an urgency to use the bathroom. Many people experience feeling frustrated, missing out on activities because of symptoms and avoiding situations where there is no bathroom nearby.

IBS-D can be diagnosed based on symptom history, including:

- Abdominal pain at least one day a week during the last three months
- More than 25 percent of bowel movements are loose or watery (diarrhea), and less than 25 percent are hard or lumpy (constipation)

- Symptoms started at least six months ago

What could be the cause?

While the exact cause of IBS-D is unknown, and people may have IBS for more than one reason, an imbalance in the usual numbers and proportions of normally healthy bacteria in the digestive system (the gut microbiota) has been found in many people with IBS-D. The microbiota help digest and absorb food and work with the immune system as a barrier against other microorganisms that can cause disease.

"One study of 109 patients with IBS showed that 73 percent had an imbalance in their gut microbiota, compared with only 16 percent of healthy people," says Dr. Franklin. "Other potential reasons may include previous gastrointestinal infection or food

Complaint (Jury Trial)

The Plaintiff complaining of the Defendant would respectfully show unto the Court as follows:

1. That the Plaintiff is a citizen and resident of the County of Spartanburg, State of South Carolina.
2. That upon information and belief Defendant Tabathe Wofford (hereinafter "Wofford") is a citizen and resident of the County of Spartanburg, State of South Carolina.
3. That the accident which is the subject of this lawsuit occurred in Spartanburg County, South Carolina.
4. That on or about January 17, 2018, Plaintiff was traveling south on US 29 in Spartanburg, South Carolina. The Defendant was also traveling in the same direction, when suddenly, and without warning she forcefully rear ended the Plaintiff's vehicle. Upon impact, the Plaintiff was hurled about within the interior of the motor vehicle causing him to suffer serious injuries which will be fully described herein.
5. That the injuries and damages sustained by the Plaintiff were due to and caused by and were the direct and proximate result of the negligent and/or reckless, willful, and wanton acts of the Defendant in one or more of the following particulars, to wit:
  - (a) In traveling too fast for conditions;
  - (b) In failing to keep a proper lookout for traffic in general and in particular, the Plaintiff;
  - (c) In failing to timely apply brakes so as to avoid crashing with the vehicle being driven by Plaintiff;
  - (d) In evidencing disregard for the safety of the public in general and in particular, the Plaintiff;

(e) In colliding with the Plaintiff's vehicle;

(f) In failing to use that degree of care that an ordinary and prudent person would have used under the same or similar circumstances.

6. That as a direct and proximate result of the negligent and/or reckless, willful, and wanton acts of the Defendant, the Plaintiff has suffered painful and personal injuries. That as a result of his injuries, the Plaintiff has been forced to undergo medical treatment and has incurred medical expenses. That as a result of the Plaintiff's injuries, he has been unable to engage in his normal pursuits of happiness, has suffered emotional distress, and mental anguish, all to his great damage.

WHEREFORE, the Plaintiff prays judgment against the Defendant as follows:

- a. actual damages found to be fair and equitable within the discretion of the fact finder;
- b. punitive damages if proven by clear and convincing evidence;
- c. for the costs and disbursements of this action;
- d. or prejudgment interest at the rate authorized by the South Carolina Supreme Court and S.C. Code Ann. § 34-31-20 (B); and
- e. for such other and further relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

Top tips for new, on-the-go parents

T (StatePoint) Parenthood doesn't mean putting the brakes on your on-the-go lifestyle.

Whether taking an everyday adventure or traveling far, ensure smoother sailing for the whole family with these tips from Lauren Parry, a mom of two and creator of the blog, "Outfits & Outings."

For Shorter Trips

- Make diaper bag packing an art form: Remember being able to jet out the door with just your keys, phone and wallet? Life is a bit more complicated these days, even for short jaunts. The general rule is to pack one diaper for each hour you'll be in transit, plus extras in case of delays. In addition to wipes and diaper rash cream, it's also good to carry plastic bags for storing soiled clothing.

- Accessorize: "Before heading out, check the weather and gear up your stroller!" suggests Parry. "Sometimes, you'll be gone for hours or even the entire day, and you'll want to ensure you have everything you need, rain or shine."

Never underestimate the importance of a weather shield to block wind and rain or to add extra insulation on colder days. Fold it up and keep it in the basket of the stroller. A parent console is also useful. It adds extra storage and allows you to easily and instantly access go-to items.

For the Longer Haul

- Make sleeping arrangements: Going out of town? Save yourself the hassle of bringing certain baby gear -- like playards and high chairs -- that can be provided by a hotel. But don't make any assumptions about what's available. Call ahead to avoid surprises.

- Encourage comfort: Hotels can be loud due to street noise, the sounds of nearby guests and other disruptions. A soothing white noise machine can help, or replicate home comforts by selecting accommodations through a rental-by-owner site.

For Adventures Near & Far

- Get a chic ride: "Whether I'm running errands or on a family vacation, I can't stress enough how much the right stroller matters," says Parry, who recommends the Baby Jogger City Tour LUX because of its ultra-compact, lightweight frame and versatility.

Parry notes that her stroller of choice comes with five different riding options, a reversible seat and accepts an infant car seat or foldable pram to accommodate newborns. Parents can also make it a double stroller by attaching a glider board. Other useful features include a one-hand fold and a carry bag for transportation.

"One thing I quickly learned was that you have to be flexible when kids are in tow. This means you need a stroller that's adaptable to whatever your needs are at that particular moment," says Parry. "This stroller's features -- including an easy-to-use hand brake, durable tires, and 3-panel canopy -- make it easy to stay on-the-go and keep my baby happy while I'm out and about."

To learn more about the City Tour LUX, recommended for children up to 45 pounds, visit babyjogger.com.

- Keep hunger at bay: No matter where you're headed or how you're getting there, snacks are essential. Cheerios are a good go-to but try to keep a few favorites stored in the diaper bag. When possible, opt for less messy items to minimize the potential for spills and stains.

Traveling with children is never easy but being prepared will help the whole family have fun, no matter the adventure.
