Fifth Annual Josh Lee Memorial 5K set for Oct. 24

USC Upstate athletics, in partnership with Johnny and Laurie Lee of Spartanburg, is set to host the 5th Annual Josh Lee Memorial 5K on Saturday October 24th on Upstate's campus. The race, which was originally scheduled to take place in May, has been moved to a fall date in 2020 and will see some operational modifications to adhere to social distancing protocols.

The annual event was first held in 2016 and is named in honor of the late Josh Lee, a USC Upstate cross country runner and scholar-athlete who was killed in a car accident in October 2015. Proceeds from the race go toward the Josh Lee Memorial Scholarship which was established in 2015 by the Lee family to create transformative opportunities for student-athletes. The scholarship is awarded each year to a member of the cross country/track and field team who is a rising sophomore with at least a 3.0 GPA and in good standing on the team.

Registration for the race is $25 and participants can sign up here: https://runsignup.com/Race/SC/Spartanburg/ JoshLeeMemorial5KRun

The race begins at 9:00 a.m. and to avoid crowding at the start line, participants will be encouraged to line up in a socially distant manner and according to estimated running times. Masks will be required the first quarter mile to half mile, or longer if maintaining social distancing is not possible.

Thanks to a recent donation from the Ford Motor Company to Spartanburg Community College, students in the College's Ford ASSET-Automotive Student Service Educational Training program have the opportunity to learn while working on two Ford vehicles now part of the SCC Ford ASSET fleet.

"Automotive Technic ians are in high demand with an extreme shortage of people with the necessary skills to diagnose and repair the complex vehicles that are on the road today," explains Mark Smith, program director for the SCC Ford ASSET program. "These two vehicles were donated to SCC by Ford Motor Company to keep our program up-todate with current technology. By having the ASSET program at SCC we are helping meet the demand in industry by training to Ford's standards and providing certified technicians to their dealerships." The vehicles, a Fusion College's ASSET vehicle fleet used by students for the hands-on, classroom training critical to solving mechanical problems they will face in the field. In addition to the in-depth classroom work, ASSET students also participate in a paid internship with local Ford dealerships, allowing them to "earn while they learn." The Ford-specific training offers hands-on learning experiences for students pursuing their education in automotive professions. repair Students learn to diagnose, service and maintain Ford and Lincoln automotive products and components, using recommended procedures, special service tools and equipment, and Ford service publications.

ASSET students alternate for six to eight weeks in the classroom and six to eight weeks with their sponsoring Ford Lincoln dealer over a twoyear period. At the end of the two years, they earn an associate degree and valuable in-dealer experience, setting them up for a stable and lucrative career path with potential opportunities to become a master tech, show foreman, service manager and even a general manager at dealerships. Smith adds, "As the automotive service industry continues to grow, job opportunities are increasing. Today's vehicles are more technically advanced and use complex systems to control vehicle functions, and technicians require computer and mechanical skills using sophisticated testing equipment to diagnose vehicles. A technician is extremely valuable at a dealership because they directly interact with customers who depend on their technical expertise to keep their vehicle running safely."

seeds are bursting

Pomegranates are known as a superfood with tons of wonderful health benefits, including fighting cancer and ering blood pressure and cholesterol. They're also loaded with B vitamins, potassium and folic acid. If you've never tried eating or cooking with pomegranates, now's the time! Pomegranates are in season and available through November, and some years into December and even January. Pomegranate concentrate is available through-

A pomegranate is about the size of an apple, and has a leathery, deep-red to purplishred rind. When choosing the perfect pomegranate, look at the skin. It should be thin, tough and unbroken, indicating the flavor is well-developed. Pomegranates can be held at room temperature for reasonable periods of time, out of direct sun.

Most of the fiber you get from eating pomegranates comes from the arils (seeds). So to keep up with a healthy dose of daily fiber, crunch away! You also can sprinkle pomegranate seeds over broiled fish, salads, fruit desserts, cakes and puddings, or use them in marinades, glazes and for garnish. Pomegranate seeds also are a delicious topping for waffles, oatmeal, pancakes, cereal or

How to remove pomegranate seeds

- 1. Wash the pomegranates well before using them.
- 2. After washing, slice the pomegranate in half horizontally. When you split the hard fruit open, a mass of red seeds in a spongy white membrane is revealed. The white pithy membrane around the pomegranate arils (seeds) should not be too prominent.
- 3. To remove the seeds, place the pomegranate, cut side down, in your non-dominant hand with your fingers spread apart. Place a deep, medium-sized bowl in a sink to capture the seeds and juice. Hold your hand with the pomegranate over the bowl.
- 4. Take a sturdy spatula or a wooden spoon and begin to whack the top surface of the pomegranate as hard as you can to dislodge the seeds. Turn the pomegranate over to see where the remaining seeds are lodged. Continue to whack that area and the surface all over the top of the pomegranate until all seeds have fallen out.
- 5. Repeat this process with the other half of the pome-

6. The whole fruit or seeds can be refrigerated in zippered plastic bags or in an airtight container. Refrigerate the pomegranates at 32 F to 41 F. Pomegranate seeds will keep this way for 4-5 days. They also can be frozen and stored for several months.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month

For the first time since national researchers began tracking data in 1996, South Carolina is no longer in the top-10 on the list of states where women are killed by men at a high rate. This year's report from the Violence Policy Center announced that South Carolina ranked eleventh in the nation in the rate of women murdered by men with its rate of 1.68 per 100,000. The data is featured in its report "When Men Murder Women: An Analysis of 2018 Homicide Data."

Anyone can experience intimate partner violence regardless of employment or educational level, race or ethnic background, religion, marital status, disability status, age, or sexual orientation. In 2019, SAFE Homes-Rape Crisis Coalition assisted 5,441 families and children wit domestic violence services; including sheltering 330 adults and children.

While this reduction is welcome news, a recent Post and Courier Article by Sara Coello highlighted a nationwide disparity within the report: Black women are three times more likely than White women to be killed by men, and intimate partner violence is the leading cause of premature death for Black women aged 15

Jada Charley, President/ CEO for SAFE Homes-Rape Crisis Coalition in Spartanburg County, was quoted in the Post and Courier article saying, "I think African American victims all over the nation have fears around calling law enforcement. They fear for their own safety, they have the fear of not being believed, fear of what happens involving the criminal justice system, fear that they or their partner could be murdered by law enforcement." The solution is to focus on local support programs that understand their community's needs and help victims choose the services and supports that they believe will allow them to achieve their desired outcomes. During Domestic Violence Awareness Month, they ask you to join in the efforts to raise awareness and raise voices against all forms of Intimate Partner Violence. You can play an integral role for those who are experiencing violence during this unprecedented time by supporting our efforts towards collaboration, prevention, and heal-

Wofford's student-athletes read favorite children's books to Spartanburg County elementary students in videos

In the face of the chalpresented lenges COVID-19, Wofford College student-athletes such as Alexis Tomlin and other members of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee knew they would have to change how they connected with the community.

"Before, we've gone and done a lot of in-person things, just something to stay involved with the community, and with COVID-19 that's been really difficult, says Tomlin, a senior biology and mathematics major from Myrtle Beach. "We thought 'what's a way that we can show these young kids that we're thinking about them and that we care without doing something that's going to jeopardize our health or their

A solution came when Spartanburg elementary schools reached out and requested Wofford studentathletes record themselves reading some of their favorite children's books.

The initiative is called Terrier Story Time, and according to Tomlin, a member of the women's basketball team, it's a hit with students.

"Teachers have told us that kids will have the rest of their siblings come and watch it, too," says Tomlin. "It's been great."

So far, one or two student-athletes will submit a video per week, and those videos are sent to schools across Spartanburg County.

Marcus Stallings, a senior biology and Spanish major from Fort Mill, South Carolina, is a member of Wofford's rifle team. He was one of the first students to participate. Stallings says the difficulties brought by COVID-19 fueled a desire to give back.

"I figured I have the time. Quarantine has been affecting everybody, and if I can take 15 minutes to help kids, then absolutely I'll do it," says Stallings. "This was something that I'd never tried before. Very seldom do I get to interact with young kids, and knowing that I helped somebody out, helped somebody learn, got them interested in reading, that's very gratifying."

Boeing moving 787 production to Charleston, boosting connections between state industries

On October 1, the SC Council on Competitiveness (the Council) released the 2020 SC Logistics Economic Impact Study, which highlighted the logistics sector's role in South Carolina's economy and its growth over the past decade. A major study finding was the increased interconnectivity advanced manufacturing, logistics, and technology advanced manufacturers are spending more in logistics, and logistics is relying more heavily on technology suppliers than they ever have before. Hours later the official announcement was made that Boeing would be moving its 787 production from Everett, Washington to the Boeing SC North Charleston facility.

"The decision from Boeing to move all 787 production to South Carolina is a testament not only to the robust aerospace supply chain within our state; but also recognition of our state's logistics and technology industries that support the manufacturing of aircraft," remarked Susie Shannon, President and CEO of the Council Competitiveness. "Our state's industry clusters are diverse and interconnected, and at the Council we will continue to provide the research, networking and resources to support future growth."

The Boeing SC 92-acre facility has housed 787-10 Dreamliner production since 2010, but will take on full manufacturing duties in a deal that will begin Summer 2021. We are confident the ripple effects of this decision will create opportunities in many different business sectors across the state and allow South Carolina to continue to foster innovation and leadership in SC

Aerospace, SC Logistics, and SC Tech clusters.

According to ABC 4 News, the decision was made with a focus on long term success of Dreamliner production after commercial air travel recovers from COVID-19. "For months, teams studied options, engaged all of our stakeholders, including unions, and considered a number of factors including logistics, efficiency and long-term health of our production system," Boeing Commercial Airlines division President and CEO Stan Deal said in a letter to employees about the decision. "It became clear that consolidating to a single 787 production location in South Carolina will make us more competitive and efficient, better positioning Boeing to weather these challenging times and win new business."

While most attribute texting to distracted driving, it is important to note that other behaviors such as checking and posting to social media, browsing music playlists, reading emails, etc. are all habits that can result in a fatal injury or crash. Over 22 percent of distractionaffected crashes involved confirmed use of a smartphone.

"Social media platforms such as Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat and TikTok encourage users to 'go live' from locations and unfortunately what we're seeing is that those locations are often inside a vehicle while driving," added Wright.

Prepare for your drive. Set vehicle systems like GPS, seats, mirrors, climate controls and sound systems before hitting the road. Decide on your route please, finish dressing and music video complete with grooming home - before you get on the road.

Disable or stow electronics. Never use text messaging, email, video games or internet functions, including those built into the vehicle, while driving. Stow your smartphone away, turn it to airplane mode, or activate call/text blocking features.

Stay focused. Do not let anything divert your attention. Be sure to actively scan the road, use your mirrors, and watch out for pedestrians and cyclists. If you have passengers, enlist their help as a "designated texter". Ask them to answer your calls, respond to texts and program the navigation.

Home projects that don't require a professional (StatePoint) While spending more time at home, you may have noticed the little things that need to be fixed, and small ways you can improve the appearance and functionality of your home. So why not use this time to test your skills with a few DIY projects?

Here are some easy, affordable tips to fix those items that have been nagging at you, as well as check off small projects that will boost your home's aesthetic.

1. First impressions are everything. From your family and friends to the mail carrier, your front door greets everyone who comes to your home. But it can take a beating from weather and constant use, so revitalize it with a fresh coat of paint. Once the paint has dried, accent it with a new door knocker, hardware or address plate. Worried about drilling into the door? Secure these with T-Rex Mounting Tape. Mounting tape is a strong, weatherresistant tape for heavyduty projects that replaces nails, screws and staples.

2. Trim the walls. Accenting a room with wood trim is a quick way to add another level of depth and detail to the interior of your home, and it won't cost a lot. Your local home improvement store can provide the best trim to fit your budget. For a smooth installation, ditch the nail gun and runny glues, and opt for a fastadhering super glue tape, which sticks on contact and works just as well as traditional nails.

3. Bolster your security. Feeling safe at home is important, and security cameras are a quick and easy solution to deter unwanted visitors and offer you peace of mind. If you've been toying with the idea of adding smart devices and cameras to the exterior of your home, look to install them above high-risk entry points, such as the front door, back and side doors, and the garage. There are many great security cameras that can be easily mounted to the exterior of your home without professional installation.

4. Effortless gutter repair. One project to check off your list is fixing that leaky gutter you've been ignoring. Don't worry, it's not as daunting a task as it might seem. Simply wrap waterproof tape around the leak and smooth it around all of the gutter ridges for a tight seal. Formulated to withstand extreme temperatures from -70 to 200 degrees, the UV-resistant formulation will prevent the tape from breaking down under harsh sunlight. Now how simple was that?

During these uncertain times, staying active and checking those to-dos off your list will give both you and your home a much needed refresher.

Coffee Shop Vets Are One Man Short

I didn't know if they'd be there, what with the weather snapping cold like it has, but there they were, the elderly veteran crew, arrayed in a wide half circle on the sidewalk outside the coffee shop. Or at least most of them were. I did a head count after I placed my coffee order at the pickup window. One appeared to be missing, and it seemed that I'd arrived in the middle of a conversation. "They kept him overnight, worried about his chest. Coughing, but no fever." "Can't be the virus if there's no fever." "It could be the virus with no symptoms whatsoever." The retired sergeant, in charge of physical spacing, tapped his 6-foot measuring stick on the pavement. "You need to keep up." They batted it back and forth, taking bets about which of them might have had it without knowing, citing questionable statistics and claims. A cellphone rang, and the sergeant's hand went up, calling for silence.

He listened and hung up, sliding the phone back in his fatigue jacket pocket. "It's not the virus," he said. "Common cold. But the grandkid tested positive, so now the whole house is in lockdown. Our good buddy has to go elsewhere." "Bet he's not happy about that."

"His other daughter is coming from upstate. Plans to take him with her "He'll be even less happy about that.

Poor guy. He's a news junkie. She lives in a cabin on a lake, no cable. Just basic channels.'

By the time I finished my coffee, hovering at the edge of the group, the general consensus was that their pal, to be trapped for a few weeks in a lakeside cabin in the woods with no cable television, was actually the lucky one. "Our team is working hard to keep the traditions of the State Fair alive while prioritizing safety," said Smith. "For over 150 years, South Carolinians have come together to celebrate our state's agriculture, arts, history and more. This year's celebration will look different, but will have all of the spirit and joy as years past."

One exhibit will be a celebration of the State Fair's Ride of Your Life Scholarship recipients. A 501c3 charity, the S.C. State Fair supports statewide education by awarding hundreds of thousands of dollars in scholarships annually to help students across South Carolina pursue their continued education at any public or private college, university or technical college in the state.

Follow along with exhibit details and a route map available online at scstatefair.org and via QR codes that will be accessible along the route. As you drive through the fair, enjoy a Spotify playlist of bands that have visited the S.C. State Fair over the vears.

The public is invited to share their favorite fair moments by sending them favoritememory@ Submit scstatefair.org. yours and view the shared photos on scstatefair.org/ memories.
